SUCCOR—A wounded Marine is comforted by chaplain as he awaits evacuation in Hue. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

SAIGON (AP) — Fresh U. S. Marines moved Sunday night into Hue's Citadel, where the enemy has held out nearly two weeks against South Vietnamese forces, and other Americans battled Communist holdouts near the Saigon racetrack.

The Marines, who already have recaptured the southern part of Hue, sent 400 men up the Perfume River in assault boats to attack the northwest flank of North Vietnamese forces in the old walled Citadel. Lt. Col. Phan Van Khoa, province chief, mayor of Hue and district military commander, said Communist troops in Hue executed 300 civilians Friday and buried them in a mass grave south of the city. He said the grave was in an area not yet reached by allied forces but that his reports of the executions were precise and unquestionable.

The victims were province officials, technicians, policemen and others who long had been marked for death by the Communists, he said. A Vietnamese civilian reported 125 to 150 Catholics being led from the city as captives Saturday.

It was the first time American troops had entered the battle for the Citadel, scene of heavy fighting since the Communists attacked Hue Jan. 31 in the early stage of their giant offensive against 35 major cities and towns. South Vietnamese troops had pushed the enemy force into corners but had been unable to drive them out.

Addition of the 400 fresh men swelled the Leatherneck force in Hue to about 1,000 men. AP correspondent George McArthur reported from Hue that the Marines were meeting only occasional sniper fire in the southern part of the city 40 miles north of Saigon. He said there were indications all North Vietnamese troops had withdrawn from the fighting for the south side, leaving only local guerrillas, including some who infiltrated among the 30,000 civilian refugees.

Fighting also continued in Saigon and its suburbs for the 13th day, and communiques and field reports said U.S. and South Vietnamese infantrymen, helicopter gunships and fighter-bombers killed 223 Viet Cong in running battles around a government ammunition dump a mile northeast of Tan Son Nhut Air Base and near the Saigon racetrack on the city's western outskirts.

AP photographer Joe Holloway reported that infantrymen from the U.S. 19th Brigade moved into Saigon Friday to speed the mop-up operation, found remnants of a Viet Cong battalion hiding out behind grave mounds in two small cemeteries and near three houses surrounded by rice paddies in the race course area.

The infantrymen sealed the area off with armored personnel carriers, then appealed via loudspeaker from a hovering helicopter for the guerrillas to surrender. None came out. The infantrymen went in after them and later counted 42 enemy dead, along with six U.S. troops killed and 13 wounded.

In another incident, a flare dropped to illuminate a sector of the city caused a house fire that killed 12 members of one family.

But downtown, more people were on the streets and more shops were open than at any time since cities fighting began Jan. 31.

In the 13 days up to midnight Sunday, Communist losses totaled 32,245 dead and 6,307 captured. South Vietnamese military headquarters said it gave allied military losses for the period as 3,285 killed, 340 missing and 11,363 wounded. The last separate report on American casualties listed 973 dead as of midnight Saturday and 4,874 wounded.

Elsewhere across the country, South Vietnamese military headquarters said most enemy actions over the last 24 hours were mortar and rocket attacks or light harassing actions.

Government troops reported killing 112 of the enemy and capturing 25 weapons in mop-up operations just outside the provincial capital of Bac Lieu, 110 miles southwest of Saigon. Eight Government soldiers were killed and 40 wounded.

The U.S. Marines still awaited a massive assault on their combat base at Khe Sanh, which blocks the North Vietnamese from marching through South Vietnam's northwest corner into the population centers of its two northernmost provinces.

The routine of enemy shellings and U.S. B52 strikes against Communist positions around Khe Sanh continued. About Khe Sanh continued. Marine spokesmen said 120 rounds of enemy rocket, artillery and mortar fire Sunday killed one Marine and wounded two at Khe Sanh and other Marine positions along the northern frontier.

The eight-engine B52s made five raids Sunday night and today, one of them within two miles of the Khe Sanh base. About 35 miles south of Da Nang, near the provincial capital of Tam Ky, an estimated 400 Viet Cong troops attacked units of the South Vietnamese 6th Army Regiment today.

'Bonnie and Clyde' Jailed for 2 Slayings

PRATTVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Benny Brown and Faye Dawson, a young Georgia couple who vowed they would never be taken alive, were in an Alabama jail today, arrested in connection with two slayings.

Brown, 23, and Miss Dawson, 16, were arrested Saturday night at a roadblock near Macon, Miss., following a chase through three states which left two persons dead and four others wounded.

Georgia officials reported telephone calls from Brown Saturday warning them not to come after him because he would never be taken alive and saying he intended to make a run for it.

But Mississippi authorities said Brown offered no resistance when captured Saturday night.

"I think at the roadblock Brown saw he didn't have much of a chance, looking down those shotgun barrels," said J.D. Slay, head of the Meridian, Miss., patrol district.

Brown and the girl waived extradition proceedings and were turned over to Sheriff Phillip Wood of Autauga County Sunday.

Brown was charged with murder in the Friday night shooting of Connie Willingham, 16, of Menlo, Ga., in Summerville. Three other youths were wounded in that shooting.

Both Brown and Miss Dawson are charged with murder in the shooting of Hugh Boyd, 47, of Montgomery, Saturday near here. Boyd's son, 21-year-old Marine Sgt. Harry Neal Boyd, was shot and seriously wounded.

Brown and his girl friend just happened to meet the Boyds in Prattville, said Wood. "They didn't give them a chance to talk, explain or anything," he said. "They just shot them."

Authorities pieced together this chronology of events which they believe occurred in the three-state crime spree. Brown had been in an argument earlier with Willingham and the other three youths in Summerville. On Friday night the four youths in a pickup truck pulled alongside Brown's red sports car. McConnell said the youths told him Brown rolled down the window and opened fire on them with a .38-caliber pistol.

The pair fled and authorities issued a lookout for them in both Georgia and Alabama. On Saturday, authorities said, Boyd and his son were shot after they stopped their car to lend aid to a young couple who flagged them down claiming they had had a hunting accident.

Officers said both men were shot five times. Boyd was killed immediately and his son was in serious condition at Maxwell Air Force Base hospital in nearby Montgomery.

Mississippi authorities said a highway patrolman spotted the Boyd car and followed it. A roadblock was set up and highway patrolmen sat quietly with their auto lights out until the car appeared.

Navy Jet Hits Span Killing 2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two men in a Navy jet trainer, hurtling through thick fog, crashed in flames into the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, scorching girders and tearing crosspieces Sunday.

Shattered remains of the T33, which had taken off from nearby Alameda Naval Air Station, continued past the five-lane westbound upper bridge roadway and about 180 feet down to the water. Engineers said a damaged bridge girder would have to be replaced.

The Navy identified the two men as Lt. Anthony V. Miller, 33, of Palm Desert, Calif., and Lt. Bruce C. Turnbull, 34, of Los Angeles. Both were members of Reserve Attack Squadron 773 stationed at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station in Southern California. The Navy said they were on a routine weekend training mission.

Seconds before the crash, truck driver Ronald Terry of El Obrante was heading toward San Francisco with 8,050 gallons of jet fuel in a tank truck. "I hear this jet coming," he said. "I look up and I see a big streak. There were flames all over the place. The stuff was raining down on me. I thought my truck blew up."

There were no reports of any injuries on the bridge. Bits of wreckage slightly damaged Terry's truck.

Rocky-Lindsay Split Soars With End of Garbage Tieup

NEW YORK (AP) — Men are busy today collecting tons of garbage rotting on New York City's streets. That's about all Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor John V. Lindsay agree on.

Differences between the two nationally prominent Republicans escalated over the weekend, spurred by Rockefeller's action Saturday night to end the city's 9-day, illegal strike by the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association.

10-1 Edge

Rockefeller, in an unprecedented move, placed the city's 10,000 sanitationmen under state control and put them back on the streets. By then, garbage had a 10-to-1 edge on the collectors—10 tons for each man.

Lindsay, already fuming because Rockefeller balked at the mayor's request for a National Guard call-up, exploded at the state takeover, calling it unsound and a threat to every city in the nation.

The plan, Lindsay said, was a "direct and dangerous threat to home rule." He said it was "clear that the governor and I have a disagreement about how you run a government."

Rockefeller's plan, which gave the union a settlement Lindsay termed "blackmail," would put the city's Sanitation Department under state control during a temporary health emergency.

It still left the union without a contract.

Asks Adoption

Rockefeller was to ask the state legislature today to drop its regular business and pass the special legislation, which would officially give the state control of the department and guarantee payment of the sanitationmen's salaries.

On Sunday night the governor announced that he would ask for a 3-day delay in the effective date of the legislation, "to give the mayor an opportunity to work out a settlement with the sanitation union."

Lindsay didn't comment on the proposed delay, but an aide called it unrealistic. "How can you bargain with the union," the Lindsay aide said, "when they know that just by waiting three days they can get the maximum amount promised them by the governor?"

A hint about public sentiment on the Lindsay-Rockefeller confrontation came Sunday night when the handsome congressman-turned-mayor got a standing ovation at the formal opening of the new Madison Square Garden.

Aides to the mayor said telegrams to Lindsay ran 778-15 in his favor, and calls to the Mayor's Action Center backed his stand 3,249-62. Rockefeller aides said a wave of unfavorable messages to the governor turned in his favor after he got the garbage collectors back on the street, but they said they had no specific figures.

More than 5,000 sanitationmen worked Sunday in temperatures mostly in the teens. The war on garbage was slowed on scores of streets where firemen had put out trash blazes and left an icy mass of trash.

Rockefeller's settlement gave the sanitationmen a $425-a-year raise, retroactive to last July 1, when their old contract expired. The old wage rates went from $6,424 a year for beginners to $7,956 after three years.

Lindsay said on Saturday the city's top offer was a $375 annual raise, which would cost the city $3.75 million. Rockefeller, however, said the city had agreed to $4 million in raises—or $400 per man—and thus the $425 would cost the city only an additional $250,000.

The agreement also provides double time for Sunday and holiday work, said Paul O'Dwyer, a union attorney. Not affected by the governor's action, he said, is the 15-day jail sentence imposed on the union president, John DeLury, for defying a back-to-work order issued under the state's Taylor Law which bans public employe strikes.

Drug Addicts Seized In the Plattekill Area

BY WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Six narcotic users under treatment at the Mid-Hudson Rehabilitation Center in Beacon who escaped Saturday night after saving the bars from third floor detention rooms, were back in custody on Sunday.

Three were apprehended by State Police at Plattekill, where they were taken by a taxicab driver from the southern Dutchess County city. A relative of one of the trio was arrested by Fishkill and Highland State Police as he reportedly was driving the three escapees to New York City.

The sextette sawed the bars from the windows on the third floor of the institution and made their way to the ground by sliding down improvised rope which they fashioned out of bed sheets.

The escape was discovered by authorities at the institution and police agencies throughout the area were alerted and a manhunt was launched under command of Captain J. C. Dwyer, Sergeant W. H. Anagnos and Bureau of Criminal Investigation officers from Fishkill.

The six men made their getaway at 11:20 p. m. Saturday. They apparently separated in trios because within 20 minutes Beacon Patrolmen Richard Frost and Donald Bush apprehended three of the fugitives in the vicinity of Hudson View Park just outside the city limits. The men gave no resistance as they were handcuffed and returned to Matteawan State Hospital where the Mid-Hudson Rehabilitation Center is located.

Meanwhile, roadblocks were set up on both sides of the Hudson River. Guards were assigned to the Beacon-Newburgh and the Mid-Hudson Bridges and state police patrols combed the main highways as the search for the missing three men was pressed.

Beacon Police Chief Samuel Woods said two city detectives taking part in the search learned that a Beacon Taxi driver had picked up three men after 11:30 p. m. Saturday and drove them to a Plattekill restaurant. The driver of the cab was not aware the trio, who said they were from New York City had escaped from the rehabilitation center and were the objects of an intensive manhunt.

Troopers Jerry Novotny and Peter J. Murphy from the Fishkill barracks hurried to Highland where they were joined by Troopers J. R. Ostmark and Brian S. O'Connor. Accompanied by the taxi driver, who was

The Bottom of the Barrel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I'd rather stay at the bottom of the barrel, I'm not ready yet to go over to the other side."

With these words bearded, tattered Clint Wescott, 51, who says he's been on the bum for 15 years, refused $19,219.

"Hand me a dollar," he said, "I'll take it—buy a little drink, a little smoke. But I don't want the nineteen thousand."

"I just don't want the money."

His Friends

The money belongs to Wescott, who sleeps in weeds in a vacant downtown lot and lives with his friends "One-eyed Jack," "Big Swede," and "The Missing Man."

His current assets are 44 cents, he says.

The money is from the foreclosure sale in 1961 of a gas station in Burnt Hills, N.Y., near Schenectady, that Wescott abandoned in 1953 when he headed west. The $15,124 sale price plus interest are in two bank accounts.

A law firm, appointed by the New York Supreme Court to handle the case, has searched for Wescott since 1961.

Two weeks ago, Wescott told newsmen of his friends and their home in an undeveloped area a few blocks from the county courthouse.

Great Relief

Said Brown: "Finding Clinton is a great relief. The sooner I hand over the money to him, the better I will like it." He said Wescott had been a popular resident of the town and had built the station with his own hands.

"Then suddenly one day 15 years ago he said the hell with it and took off," said Brown.

Brown sent a letter to the newspaper carrying a separate note informing Wescott of his wealth.

Reporters found Wescott over the weekend asleep in a pile of newspapers beneath a bridge. He ignored the tale of his fortune.

"It's not a bad life, Wescott said. 'No cares.' A man lives in the weeds with $30, $40 in his pocket—it's a different story. A few dimes, pennies. There's no danger of anything."

"I'm rich. This is all the richer I want to be. Enough to buy a short jug. That's all I want out of life now. No taxes. No rush to work. Rush home from work. Nothing."

"One of these days I'll go straight. I'll climb out of the bottom of the barrel. But I'm not ready. Not now anyway."

Schenectady, that Wescott abandoned in 1953 when he headed west. The $15,124 sale price plus interest are in two bank accounts.

A law firm, appointed by the New York Supreme Court to handle the case, has searched for Wescott since 1961.

Two weeks ago, Wescott told newsmen of his friends and their home in an undeveloped area a few blocks from the county courthouse.

Great Relief

Said Brown: "Finding Clinton is a great relief. The sooner I hand over the money to him, the better I will like it." He said Wescott had been a popular resident of the town and had built the station with his own hands.

Wescott.

"Then suddenly one day 15 years ago he said the hell with it—'nd took off,'" said Brown.

Brown sent a letter to the newspaper carrying a separate note informing Wescott of his wealth.

Reporters found Wescott over the weekend asleep in a pile of newspapers beneath a bridge. He ignored the tale of his fortune.

"It's not a bad life, Wescott said. "No cares." A man lives in the weeds with $30, $40 in his pocket—it's a different story. A few dimes, pennies. There's no danger of anything.

I'm rich. This is all the richer I want to be. Enough to buy a short jug. That's all I want out of life now. No taxes. No rush to work. Rush home from work. Nothing.

"One of these days I'll go straight. I'll climb out of the bottom of the barrel. But I'm not ready. Not now anyway."

Pancake Supper For Sr. Citizens

In keeping with their stepped-up program for Senior Citizens in the city, the Kingston Recreation Commission has scheduled a free Aunt Jemima Pancake supper on Monday evening Feb. 19 in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium for all Senior Citizens.

The supper will be held in the dining room of the Municipal Auditorium and the first serving will start at 5 p. m. There will be a second serving at 5:45 p. m. and a final serving at 6:30 p. m. Recreation commissioners, their wives and others interested in the Senior Citizens movement will serve the supper which will consist of Aunt Jemima pancakes, Siller's Sausage and Hills Brothers Coffee. Dinner music for the evening will be provided by Local 215, American Federation of Musicians as a part of the transcription fund.

Free bus transportation to and from the Auditorium will be provided by the Commission on a regular city routes system starting at 5 p. m. Present plans call for the feeding of between 200 and 300 people on an "all you can eat" basis. The Commission requests that, if at all possible, anyone planning to attend please call the Recreation Office and notify them of the sitting they plan to attend. The Commission also advises that they will be ready for all even if some find it impossible to call and make reservations although the reservation system will be a great help in the planning for the affair.

Senior Citizens are requested to reserve the date and bring their appetite to the Auditorium on the night of Feb. 19. Additional information on transportation will be announced within a few days.

Welfare Mum To Press on Foster Child

By JEAN F. DOLAN

"We are only concerned for the child's welfare."

This is what Mrs. Joseph G. Beatty of Gardiner said repeatedly Friday as she recounted another tale of broken hearted Ulster County foster parents.

It came to light this week that a 14-year-old child the Beattys have taken care of for the past five years was removed from their home "without explanation" and placed in Wassaic State School, Dutchess County.

The action was taken in August of last year by the Ulster County Social Services Department and on very short notice. The girl, Linda Hendricks, now 15, had been with the Beattys since just before her 10th birthday and according to Mrs. Beatty still considers their house "home."

Mrs. Beatty said that when Linda was placed with them, the case worker stressed the fact that the girl was mentally retarded and needed an understanding foster home, rather than life in an institution. During her stay with the Gardiner family, Linda attended special classes at New Paltz where she was doing "as well as could be expected," Mrs. Beatty said the bright-eyed youngster was capable of a limited normal life and could be relied on to do ordinary household tasks.

She expressed her fears for Linda's happiness and well-being at the Wassaic School, saying that "exposure at the school could have adverse effects."

Authorities in the case have refused any comment.

Refuses to Comment
Mrs. Maureen Gray, Ulster County child welfare supervisor, who according to Mrs. Beatty was the original case worker who placed Linda in their home, refused to make any statement when contacted by The Freeman. She said the case concerned a minor child and the information was confidential. When asked to verify data given by Mrs. Beatty, she suggested we "talk to Mrs.

Beatty," thus terminating the conversation.

It was learned, however from another source that Linda's natural father approved the child's commitment to the state school. Mrs. Beatty said that to her knowledge Linda has not seen her own parents for many years.

The Beatty's who have been foster parents and Fresh Air hosts for 14 years still keep in touch with Linda—going to see her at the school and having her "home" for a Christmas visit. During the holiday reunion, the child repeatedly pleaded to "stay home." However, Mrs. Beatty said, school authorities had allowed the visit only on condition that nothing be said about "staying."

In the meantime, Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, 45 and 42 respectively, have consulted New Paltz attorney Robert Harp to investigate the possibility of having the child released so that they may adopt her.

Recalls Luni Case

The case brings to mind the nationally publicized Luni case in 1966 involving Beth St. John, then 4½ years old. She had lived with the Michael Luni family in Tillson since she was six weeks old. When she was put out for adoption by another family under Ulster County Welfare Department orders, the nation's press, radio and television rallied public opinion in favor of the Luni's who were finally permitted to adopt Beth themselves.

Commissioner Joseph Fitzsimmons who figured largely in that case is on vacation this month and is unavailable for comment.

Under the law, no explanation is required to be given to foster parents by the welfare department when the foster home is changed. Nor, do the Beatty's have any legal steps to prevent Linda's placement at Wassaic since the child's legal father signed the necessary forms and the legal commitment procedure was followed. Legal or no, Mrs. Beatty says she just can't bear the thought of Linda "locked away." "She is entitled to a life."

2 Upstaters Dead in Viet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two more Western New York servicemen, Marine Pfc. Joseph Brewer, 21, of Elmira, and Army WO Dwight A. Dedrick, 22, of Delevan, Cattaraugus County, have been reported killed in action in Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Brewer said Saturday Marine authorities informed them that their son was killed while on patrol near Danang. He recently had been granted his request to serve in the battle zone, they said.

Brewer, a graduate of Corning Community College, arrived in Vietnam in November. He had enlisted in the Marines a year ago. He leaves two brothers and a sister, besides his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Dedrick said military officials told them that their son, a helicopter pilot, died of mortar wounds near Hue Jan. 31.

Dedrick, who attended Jamestown Community College, entered the service in April, 1966 and was sent overseas last May.

Besides his parents, he leaves a sister and three brothers.

"We locked arms and stepped up to the problem. It was Martin Pontiac Inc., Mason's great evidence what the people of Ulster County can accomplish when they want to."

That was George Tamke's key to the 1968 successful drive to raise $320,000 for the Ulster County Community Chest.

Relinquishing his reins to William Pearson, the new campaign manager for 1969, he spoke at the annual dinner held Saturday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel, saying he felt Ulster had the potential for being a model for New York State.

Rieley, David Kline and Mrs. Randolph Siegel and Dr. Wendall Hoover. Raible was named president and Nicholas J. Servino, treasurer. William Stall was selected chairman of nominations.

Pearson who has already set the wheels in motion for the 1969 campaign, said he would announce the makeup of his campaign cabinet shortly.

19th Arrested In Orange in Drug Raids

One more person, an 18-year-old boy, has been arrested in Middletown in connection with narcotics raids made Friday night by State Police.

The arraignment of Jack William Wolf of Middletown brings the total arrests to 19 including an Orange County Community College English instructor, John C. Green, who has since been suspended from the faculty.

Wolf is charged with the alleged sale of dangerous drugs, a felony.

Most of the 19 are charged with possession of marijuana, and loitering, and one was charged with possession of a dangerous drug. Those arrested, six of whom were girls, ranged in age from 19 to 22. The raids, two in Middletown and one in Wallkill, climaxed a three-week investigation by Middletown State Police and the district attorney's office.

All were committed to Middletown City Jail or Orange County Jail, no bail was set and hearings are scheduled for Tuesday.

Thant, Soviets Talk Viet War

MOSCOW (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant talked about Vietnam with Soviet leaders today for the second day as Pravda trumpeted renewed and unmodified support for Hanoi's peace terms.

Thant met with Premier Alexi N. Kosygin and then with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev. The secretary-general also talked with Kosygin Sunday soon after he arrived.

To See Wilson

Thant was flying on to London tonight to see Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who has endorsed President Johnson's San Antonio formula of requirements for negotiations.

The Soviet and British governments are cochairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the French war in Indochina and has often been suggested as a vehicle for peace again. But the Soviet Union has rejected all British proposals to reopen the conference, and there was no indication whether Thant had obtained any modification in this stand.

The secretary-general came to Moscow from India in his campaign to put a brake on deteriorating peace prospects as a result of the Communist offensive in Vietnam. He talked to the North Vietnamese consul in New Delhi.

Thant's London schedule called for a meeting Tuesday morning with Foreign Secretary George Brown and luncheon with Wilson before departing for New York.

Wilson said Sunday after a visit to Johnson that he supported President Johnson's San Antonio formula as the road to peace in Vietnam. He said he had carried the proposal to Kosygin when he visited Moscow Jan. 22-24.

Johnson in a speech in San Antonio, Tex., last September promised an end to the bombing of North Vietnam when there is assurance from the Communist side that this will lead to close contacts in Vietnam suggested that the aim of the Viet Cong offensive in the cities was to unseat or discredit the Saigon government to keep it out of future peace negotiations.

These sources also said a chance to start negotiations apparently was close recently, but that prospects have dimmed considerably as a result of the military situation.

They said the Viet Cong goal appears to be to kill, kidnap or threaten so many government officials that President Nguyen Van Thieu's government can no longer be considered operating, and any peace negotiations would be between the United States on one side and North Vietnam and the Viet Cong on the other.

In the United States, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said Sunday that the Communist offensive against South Vietnam's cities had made clear that no part of the country is secure.

Park Mulls LBJ Talk

By BOB POOS

SEOUL (AP) — South Korean President Chung Hee Park is reported considering a trip to talk with President Johnson if U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance doesn't resolve the U.S.-South Korean rift over Korean security.

Vance and Park met for the first time today. Vance's mission is to quiet South Korean fears that the United States is tending toward appeasement in the Pueblo incident and neglecting the increase in the infiltration of armed North Koreans into the South.

Johnson sent Park a personal letter last Thursday, and Vance was expected to deliver another such letter today. Informed Korean sources said Johnson may have invited Park to Washington and, depending on the results of his talks with Vance, Park may decide to go.

Propose Wednesday

In a move welcome to the South Koreans, the American officers who head the U.N. Command in Korea asked for a meeting with North Korea to air claims of Communist truce violations "in and through the demilitarized zone."

North Korea rejected the command's proposal to meet today, but it was indicated that the Communists proposed meeting Wednesday and that this would be acceptable to the U.N. side.

A U.S. military spokesman said four North Koreans crossed into South Korea around midnight Sunday, but American sentries repelled them in a brief clash. No casualties were reported.

There was speculation that Vance would also meet with North Korean representatives before his scheduled departure Tuesday afternoon. The United States and North Korea have held five secret meetings since the Communists seized the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship Pueblo Jan. 23.

No official reports have come out of the talks, but reliable Korean sources said they believed three injured Pueblo crewmen and the body of one sailor who died would be returned soon.

The secret meetings miffed the South Koreans, traditionally strong allies of the United States, who are more concerned about the security threat raised by the Communist commando

Raible, Pearson Named; Chest Awards Made Known

"We locked arms and stepped up to the problem. It was great evidence what the people of Ulster County can accomplish when they want to."

That was George Tamke's key to the 1968 successful drive to raise $320,000 for the Ulster County Community Chest.

Relinquishing his reins to William Pearson, the new campaign manager for 1969, he spoke at the annual dinner held Saturday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel, saying he felt Ulster had the potential for being a model for New York State.

Two Special Awards

Charles Raible, who assumes the president's post for the second time this year and Pearson, also addressed the 228 persons present.

Special awards were given Maria Masterson, who has spent 40 voluntary hours a week in the chest office since last September and to Clifford A. Henze to whom the Newton D. Baker award was presented.

Richard Kalish, nominating chairman, presented a slate for 1969 which included: directors, Joseph J. Benjamin, Joseph F. Brady, Michael Ewig, Everett Dodge, Charles Raible, Thomas F. Rieley, David Kline and Mrs. Randolph Siegel and Dr. Wendell Hoover. Raible was named president and Nichols J. Servino, treasurer. William Stall was selected chairman of nominations.

Pearson who has already set the wheels in motion for the 1969 campaign, said he would announce the makeup of his campaign cabinet shortly.

London Next Stop,

Thant, Soviets Talk Viet War

MOSCOW (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant talked about Vietnam with Soviet leaders today for the second day as Pravda trumpeted renewed and unmodified support for Hanoi's peace terms.

Thant met with Premier Alexi N. Kosygin and then with Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev. The secretary-general also talked with Kosygin Sunday soon after he arrived.

To See Wilson

Thant was flying on to London tonight to see Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who has endorsed President Johnson's San Antonio formula of requirements for negotiations.

The Soviet and British governments are cochairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the French war in Indochina and has often been suggested as a vehicle for peace.

But the Soviet Union has rejected all British proposals to reopen the conference, and there was no indication whether Thant had obtained any modification in this stand.

The secretary-general came to Moscow from India in his campaign to put a brake on deteriorating peace prospects as a result of the Communist offensive in Vietnam. He talked to the North Vietnamese consul in New Delhi.

Thant's London schedule called for a meeting Tuesday morning with Foreign Secretary George Brown and luncheon with Wilson before departing for New York.

Wilson said Sunday after a visit to Johnson that he supported President Johnson's San Antonio formula as the road to peace in Vietnam. He said he had carried the proposal to Kosygin when he visited Moscow Jan. 22-24.

Johnson in a speech in San Antonio, Tex., last September promised an end to the bombing of North Vietnam when there is assurance from the Communist side that this will lead to close contacts in Vietnam suggested that the aim of the Viet Cong offensive in the cities was to unsettle or discredit the Saigon government to keep it out of future peace negotiations.

These sources also said a chance to start negotiations apparently was close recently, but that prospects have dimmed considerably as a result of the military situation.

They said the Viet Cong goal appears to be to kill, kidnap or threaten so many government officials that President Nguyen Van Thieu's government can no longer be considered operating, and any peace negotiations would be between the United States on one side and North Vietnam and the Viet Cong on the other.

In the United States, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said Sunday that the Communist offensive against South Vietnam's cities had made clear that no part of the country is secure.

In Paris, neutral sources with

Park Mulls LBJ Talk

By BOB POOS

SEOUL (AP) — South Korean President Chung Hee Park is reported considering a trip to talk with President Johnson if U.S. presidential envoy Cyrus Vance doesn't resolve the U.S.-South Korean rift over Korean security.

Vance and Park met for the first time today. Vance's mission is to quiet South Korean fears that the United States is tending toward appeasement in the Pueblo incident and neglecting the increase in the infiltration of armed North Koreans into the South.

Johnson sent Park a personal letter last Thursday and Vance was expected to deliver another such letter today. Informal sources said Johnson may have invited Park to Washington, depending on the results of his talks with Vance. Park may decide to go.

raid into Seoul Jan. 21 in an attempt to assassinate President Park.

The commandos failed, but a police chief was killed in a gun battle with them only 800 yards from the presidential mansion. Allied forces later killed 27 of the infiltrators and captured one.

South Korean officials also were expected to ask Vance for return of operational control of their 560,000-man armed forces, now held by American Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel III, the commander of U.N. forces in South Korea.

The South Koreans also have been pressing for more U.S. help in modernizing and expanding their armed forces. President Johnson has asked Congress for $100 million in special military aid to Korea, but Park's government said it was more concerned about fundamental security problems than any one-time appropriation.

Some Korean legislators have suggested withdrawal of the 48,000-man Korean force in Vietnam to meet the crisis at home unless the United States takes what they consider a firmer stand in Korea.

In the United States, the Gallup Poll reported only three people out of very 100 interviewed in a survey feel the nation would use all-out military efforts to get the Pueblo back. It said about 40 per cent think the government should make every effort to get the Pueblo back. It said about 40 per cent think the government should make every effort to get the ship back, including some force if necessary. About 21 per cent favor concentrating on negotiations, it reported.

The poll also said 45 per cent of the people polled think the Korean situation is likely to lead to war while 41 per cent think it can be settled peacefully.

Drug Raids

One more person, an 18-year-old boy, has been arrested in Middletown in connection with narcotics raids made Friday night by State Police.

The arraignment of Jack William Wolf of Middletown brings the total arrests to 19 including an Orange County Community College English instructor, John C. Green, who has since been suspended from the faculty.

Wolf is charged with the alleged sale of dangerous drugs, a felony.

Most of the 19 are charged with possession of marijuana, and loitering, and one was charged with possession of a dangerous drug. Those arrested, six of whom were girls, ranged in age from 19 to 22.

The raids, two in Middletown and one in Wallkill, climaxed a three-week investigation by Middletown State Police and the district attorney's office.

All were committed to Middletown City Jail or Orange County Jail, no bail was set and hearings are scheduled for Tuesday.

The Lincoln We Remember

Perhaps the most tragic thing about Abraham Lincoln, the man of many tragedies, was that he was not permitted to live long enough to help "bind up the nation's wounds," as he urged his countrymen to do in his second inaugural address. He made his plea a month before he was murdered by a demented agent of destiny.

Ironically, Lincoln, the man of peace, was fated to know nothing but war in the four years and one month of his presidency. The humanitarian and war leader was forced to direct the spending of the flower of the nation's youth and the substance of its wealth in a conflict whose dimensions even today stagger the mind.

Yet, the greatest irony of all, it is this Lincoln that we cherish, not the commander-in-chief, not the strategist, not the preserver of the Union, though he was all of these.

It is the boy studying by light of hearth fire, the backwoods lawyer, the sad-faced humorist, the President who left his bed to sign a pardon for a soldier.

It is the Lincoln the healer whose memory we honor, the gentle man, the eloquent peacemaker in the midst of battle.

Tested in the terrible crucible of war blotted out by an assassin's bullet, his vision of a nation dedicated to justice of all men nevertheless endures and continues to inspire us.

Because of this, the tragedy of his death becomes a triumph and all the ironies dissolve away.

The New Freedom

A new political emblem was raised by Richard M. Nixon in his campaign for the Republican nomination for President. Adopting a strongly inspired tone, the former Vice President said the nation was suffering from a "crisis of the spirit" under the Johnson Administration. To give the nation the lift of an impelling dream, he said, "It is time to move on to a new freedom."

Explaining his concept, Nixon struck at the very roots of the New Deal as conceived by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Johnson's idol and preceptor. "The old negative freedoms—freedom from hunger, freedom from want, freedom from fear—are no longer enough," he said. "The new freedom has to mean freedom for the poor as well as for the rich, freedom for black as well as for white, and it has to mean not only freedom from but freedom to. It means freedom to grow, freedom to choose, freedom to travel, freedom to create, freedom to work—and freedom to enjoy the fruits of our labors. Let us recognize that rights have no meaning—freedom has no meaning—without the opportunity to exercise those rights and to use that freedom."

For millions of Americans, especially the young and the poor, Nixon said that America no longer is the symbol of liberty and hope. The nation's historic commitment to expand individual freedom has lost its meaning for the world and for America. To expand opportunity and recapture the vitality of the American ideal, Nixon called for programs that would encourage the full participation of private enterprise in the search for social justice.

American industry, he said, is not only technologically equipped but also eager to provide housing and jobs for the poor. Its leaders have developed a social conscience far beyond anything the leaders of the twenties and thirties would have recognized. He means to tap that reservoir of power, not big government, to work for the public. He would put the greatest engine of productivity the world has ever known at their service.

David Lawrence Says

What the Vietnam War Really Means

WASHINGTON — "What is the Vietnam War all about?" People have asked each other this question, but satisfactory answers are rarely available because of the confusion created by the debate, inside and outside of Congress, between the supporters and opponents of American policy.

Some of the critics claim, first of all, that what happens 10,000 miles away is none of America's business. Another group says the United States is not winning the war, but is making claims of progress which are not true. Still another faction insists that the American military commanders don't know what they're doing and have no experience with the kind of war they're fighting.

A few of the members of Congress who have been to Vietnam say that the South Vietnamese are not giving wholehearted support to the American military operations and that the native population should furnish more troops. News dispatches tell from time to time about corruption and an alleged lack of enthusiasm by the South Vietnamese people for the American effort.

Realistically, almost anything could be written about a troubled and chaotic situation like that which exists in Vietnam. Under the Geneva Agreement of 1954, the country was divided at the 17th parallel, with the understanding that there would be a cessation of all hostilities and eventually free elections to bring about the unification of the two sections. The Communists in the north, however, boldly attempted to take over the south. The Soviet Union and Red China have aided the North Vietnamese with arms and money.

South Vietnam has the right to become an independent nation. Its territorial integrity and the safety of other countries in the region were pledged by the Southeast Asia Treaty, which the United States and other governments signed.

Today the South Vietnamese people—who have little experience in self-government—are struggling to gain autonomy. They want to be safeguarded against aggression. They would like to have an opportunity to enjoy the privilege of governing themselves which other nations in the world exercise. America has endeavored to help build civilian institutions in Vietnam. It is conceded that such a job will require many years to accomplish.

Now, however, with two major Communist powers, intervening, the outlook is for human slavery—unless the nations of the free world can prevent such a tragedy. It will take a long time for South Vietnam to construct an effective government, but its people would have no chance at all to live in freedom if the Communist aggression is successful.

There are plenty of "demonstrations" in the United States against slavery or conquest by a foreign power when the issue emerges in Africa or the Middle East. The people of South Vietnam, on the other hand, would be abandoned overnight if many of the so-called "Liberals," "Pacifists," "Isolationists" and others who want the United States to pull out were able to win the argument and cause Americans to withdraw.

The Vietnam War is a fight to save human beings from oppression and slavery. The humanitarian objective has not been emphasized. Even when the United States has tried to improve the machinery of the South Vietnamese government, accusations have been made that this country is interfering with the internal affairs of another country.

What the Vietnam War really means to mankind is that unless South Vietnam is effectively defended it will be swallowed up by the Communists and remain a puppet of Moscow or Peking for many years to come.

The United States government should not hesitate to make plain that the choice for the South Vietnamese people is between freedom and slavery and that the problem is not merely one for America. The other nations of the world have an obligation, too.

The United Nations should take the leadership in the crusade for humanity as it once did in Africa and in Korea. For the lives and liberty of more than 17 million people in South Vietnam are at stake—and also the future of 250 million people in the other free countries of Southeast Asia.

The play was more than half over. At ten p.m., the second scene of the third act of "Our American Cousin" began. The President, partly screened by the drapes in the upper box, leaned forward on his rocker to watch the portly General Ambrose E. Burnside come down the orchestra aisle, split the tails of his uniform, and sit.

Well, the war was over. The Confederate states, after four years of strife, were in their final convulsion. Mr. Lincoln took no joy from it. At the age of 56, he was homely, bearded, disenchanted and melancholy. When a friend stopped in the White House office, the President often said: "Sing me a sad song."

A small group stood outside near the Presidential carriage. The flickering gas light re-etched the faces. Capt. William Williams of the Washington Cavalry Police, with knuckles on hips, appeared to be portly and brave. Lewis Garland, theatrical costumer, enjoyed listening to gossip. John Wilkes Booth, the noted Shakespearean actor, declined an invitation to a drink in Taltavul's tavern.

"Keene," he said, "will be onstage in a minute and I promised to take a look at her." Laura Keane had been making farewell appearances for a year. He bowed and went into the theatre. John Buckingham at the ticket box, held out his hand. Booth said, with mock solemnity, "You will not want a ticket from me?" Buckingham chuckled: "Courtesy of the house," he said.

The time was 10:07 p.m. Booth borrowed a chew of tobacco from the ticket taker. He bounded up the steps to the dress circle. James Ferguson, a restaurateur, had bought tickets for himself and a neighbor's child so that they could see the great war heroes: Lincoln and Ulysses Grant. They had had a peek at the President. As Ferguson saw a figure bound down the opposite wall to the flag-draped box, he squeezed the little girl's hand. In the tangle of the stage lights, she nodded happily.

John Wilkes Booth heard the lines on the stage. He knew, from the rehearsal this afternoon, that he was two minutes early for the big loud laugh he wanted. The actor looked at the first seat in the first row of the dress circle and wondered where Lincoln's guard, John F. Parker, might be. He was in Taltavul's, drinking ale.

A half hour before, Booth had lifted a drink in the tavern, and someone said: "You'll never be the actor your father was." Mr. Booth smiled forgivingly and said softly: "When I leave the stage, I will be the most famous man in America." Now he stepped into the alley behind Box 7, braced the door behind him with a two by four, and stared through a gimlet hole.

He saw the back of a dark shaggy head. Mr. Booth, youthful, dark, a Southerner of emotional fevers, heard Mrs. Mountchessington, on stage, say: "I am aware, Mr. Trenchard, that you are not true to the manners of good society..." Mrs. Mountchessington and her daughter Augusta left the stage frostily. Trenchard was onstage alone. The big laugh was coming. Booth pushed the door open. The President was dead ahead.

He had been holding Mrs. Lincoln's hand. On a couch to the right sat Major Henry R. Rathbone and his fiancée, Clara Harris. "Don't know the manners of good society, eh?" Trenchard said. "Well, I guess I know enough to turn you inside out, you sockdolagering old mantrap."

There was a great explosion of laughter. And a small explosion in the Presidential box. A puff of blue smoke hung over the flag. Mrs. Lincoln stared at the intruder, still laughing. Major Rathbone stood, and Booth slashed his arm with a knife. He jumped to the stage, catching a spur in a treasury banner, and broke his shinbone.

Trenchard stood confused. Booth limped offstage left to his horse, standing in an alley behind Ford's Theatre. The theatregoers were still laughing, but they did not understand what part the man in the box had in the comedy. The President hung his head as though in meditation. A small hole had been drilled in the back of his head, and the ball had crossed the brain diagonally, to lodge behind his eye. The melancholy eyes were half open, but for him, all the lights had gone out. One of the huge rail-splitter's hands began to slide off the arm rest. It was a mute farewell wave to the world of Good Friday, 1865.

Mr. Ferguson and the neighbor's child sat listening to the intense silence. The little girl, nervous in her Sunday dress and high-button shoes, reached uneasily for Mr. Ferguson's hand. Then it came. The silence was ripped down the middle by the shriek of a woman. The clock had stopped at 10:15...

North Koreans Plan Suicide Attack on U.S. Embassy in Seoul

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson, Drew Pearson's associate, is now in Korea, covering the crisis in the Far East.)

SEOUL—Somewhere in the mountains of North Korea, a suicide squad is training for a commando attack on the American embassy here. The aim is to repeat in Seoul what happened in Saigon, thus heaping more humiliation upon the United States.

The planned assault, according to South Korean sources whose knowledge of the North has proved to be disturbingly accurate, is part of an intensified guerrilla campaign which the communists hope to mount against South Korea this year.

More than 22,000 agents are reported to be receiving guerrilla instruction in the North. The elite are the commandos, trained to be fanatical killers. An estimated 2,400 are now going through the rugged commando course at secret bases scattered throughout North Korea.

How many will be used in the attempt on the U.S. embassy probably hasn't been decided. The 31-man squad that attempted to assassinate South Korea's President Chung Hee Park originally had intended to hit the American embassy and kill Ambassador William Porter.

A U.S. intelligence report on the incident, made available to this column, states tersely: "These raiders had been trained for two years and given intensive instruction during the last few weeks. Initially the leaders were given five targets, including the American ambassador and the American embassy. At almost the last moment Kim Il Sung (the North Korean dictator) decided the raiders were too small in number to execute all five targets, and he settled for President Park and the Blue House (the presidential mansion)."

A South Korean officer, who helped to break up the assassination plot, said the communist commandos scampers up and down mountains "like rabbits." Although a woodcutter spotted them and spread the alarm, they moved so swiftly that they penetrated beyond the search area before patrols arrived. The commandos were later gunned down, he said, had feet hard as shoe leather.

The assassination squad infiltrated into South Korea through the sector guarded by the U.S. Second Division. This is a rugged mountainous stretch, covered with brown brush, white birch, pine trees and patches of snow. The ground has been frozen hard by temperatures that remain below freezing, and at night often plunge below zero.

The Americans guard only 18 miles of the 151-mile demarcation line, but their small sector has become a favorite infiltration route for the North Koreans. Of the 591 confirmed infiltrators reported along the DMZ last year, 337 tried to come through the U.S. sector.

The GIs killed only 11 and captured two. In contrast, the South Koreans killed or captured 109 of the 254 agents who probed their positions.

This doesn't mean the Americans are poorer soldiers. Many are battle-tested veterans of Vietnam, who leave their bunkers at night to lie in the frozen ground in the paths the infiltrators might take.

But Washington insists that our troops fight by Marquis of Queensbury rules against an unscrupulous enemy who violates the armistice terms almost nightly. The armistice, for example, forbids the laying of new mines. However, the North Koreans sneak into the U.S. sector at night and plant mines on the jeep trails and pathways used by the GIs. Despite this, the Americans still scrupulously refrain from planting mines.

Tough South Koreans
The South Koreans, less finicky about the truce terms, take whatever means are expedient to waylay infiltrators and terrorists. The tough, disciplined South Koreans are handicapped only by an appalling lack of modern equipment.

Most North Korean guerrillas are smuggled into the South by boat along the rugged southwestern coastline. Its coves and inlets offer many hiding places for the infiltrators, who sneak ashore one or two at a time, bury their arms, then wait to rendezvous with others.

Yet only one-third of the spotter stations manned by the police have telephones to sound an alarm. The 40,000 anti-guerrilla police are equipped with antiquated carbines, no match for the automatic, Soviet-made weapons that the guerrillas carry. In fact, 17,000 of the carbines are unserviceable and are carried merely for show.

The police are so short of transportation that one unit was obliged to rent a bus late last year to chase a band of infiltrators. The bus finally stalled on a steep incline, and the police were compelled to walk.

To patrol the coast they use 72 slow fishing boats, which the South Korean navy has seized from Japanese fishermen encroaching on South Korean fishing fields. South Korean fighters desperately need modern weapons, helicopters, searchlights, signal equipment and other supplies.

But a niggardly Uncle Sam, who is pouring billions into Vietnam to fight a guerrilla war, has been unwilling to spend a few dollars in Korea to stop a guerrilla war.

Religious Slain in Public in Red China

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The Communists' horrible murder recently of six American missionaries, three of whom were women, at the remote South Vietnamese leprosarium has prompted me to ask my former diplomatic colleagues of the Vatican in Rome about the treatment of the priests and nuns in Red China.

Here are the facts. They echo Czechoslovakian Bishop Paul Hnilica: "I have seen and felt the persecution." They echo what I heard Bishop Michael Klepac of Lodz, Poland, say at the final session of the Ecumenical Council in Rome: "Peace, yes, but not at any price."

And they also echo my experience at the American Embassy in Budapest where Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty sought sanctuary and remains protected on the third floor. Cardinal Mindszenty, now 76, from the first day of his elevation to Cardinal has spent more than 85 per cent of his life in confinement. The armed Hungarian guards stood across the street, pleased as rats in a cheese factory. But if you had talked with this persecuted man you would find that confinement of the body can never fully mean confinement of the soul.

There are about three million Catholics in Red China. Mao Tse-tung first gave his support to the Catholic Church. But this was merely wily propaganda move, employed to build up a pretext that the Communists had tried conciliation but it failed.

China had 120 bishops. Only 30 were Chinese. Today all foreign bishops have been expelled, the majority after first being imprisoned. Of the 30 Chinese bishops, 15 are in prison or have been killed.

There were more than 3,000 priests, 2,300 nuns, and nearly 800 friars who were foreigners. All 6,100 have been killed, imprisoned or expelled. Only the native clergy and members of religious orders are left. So few clergy remain that many Catholics die without being able to receive extreme unction.

No priest or nun can give religious instruction. The penalty is death. This is the Communist party's throat-hold on the future. Religious instruction perpetrates the faith in God. Even teaching sacred organ music is prohibited. There is an ancient Chinese saying: "He who would attack an emperor must kill the priest." Red China's official atheist doctrine has chosen these ways to kill the church. This banning of religious instruction is likewise true in all Sino-Soviet satellite countries—from Hungary, Poland, East Germany, etc., to North Vietnam, North Korea, Tibet, etc.

All priests of every rank, friars and nuns are forced, in addition, to work at menial labor. Mao's Communist Central Labor Bureau in each province assigns the additional jobs and exerts control this way. Several bishops are working as carpenters, textile factory roustabouts, etc., with public announcement to all other workers to humiliate them. All must wear civilian clothes.

No priest can celebrate Mass after 8 a.m. Some churches are open but (again typical) are also used by the Communist party as dance halls, party festivities headquarters and other desecrating activities.

Apparently the church's disruption has been more complete in Red China than in Western European Sino-Soviet satellites where the roots are older and broader. In Czechoslovakia, for example, traditionally about 70 per cent of the Czechs are Catholics. Mao's party has created an association of "patriot priests" whose actual background in many cases is totally obscure. The party has announced that these "patriot priests" have declared that while they "remain faithful" to Rome for all that concerns Catholic dogma they "consider themselves" independent from the political and administrative point of view.

They have started to elect their own bishops. The Vatican has excommunicated these designates unless they accepted under duress.

The first high prelates so affected were the Archbishop of Siangyang, Msgr. Pu Ciue; the Bishop of Chungking, Msgr. Paul Wang; the vicar general of Nanking, Msgr. Li Wei-wang; and the vicar capitular of Shanghai, Msgr. Francis Xavier Chang.

The assassinations of prelates and nuns are invariably public, as occurred at the leprosarium in South Vietnam, where the bodies of five of the missionaries of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, the largest Protestant missionary force (138) in the country, were reportedly booby-trapped in an effort to kill the rescuers of our country's dead.

This is the face of our enemy.

Tenants Will Be Owners

By RUTH MOORE

Chicago Sun-Times Special
CHICAGO, Feb. 8—A Chicago Public Housing project will be sold to its tenants in the first action of its kind in any American city.

Mayor Richard J. Daley and the Chicago Housing Authority announced that 122 publicly owned row houses in an outlying area of small homes will be turned into a tenant-owned co-operative under the guidance of the national, nonprofit Foundation for Co-operative Housing.

"A Godsend," an opportunity, "more than we ever expected," said three of the tenants who will become owners as they stepped up to the microphones at a press conference where the announcement was made.

David L. Krooth, chairman of the legislative committee of the National Housing Conference, who was in Chicago for the occasion, predicted that Congress will enact legislation to permit housing authorities elsewhere to follow the Chicago plan for converting low-income public housing tenants into "proud" owners.

The 122 row houses to be sold were built in 1950 with state bond issue funds, and did not come under restrictions that would bar the similar sale of federally financed public housing. Sixty-three of them have three bedrooms, 46 have four and 13 have five.

The Sale Plan
Under the sale plan, tenants may buy the houses in which they live for a down payment of $200, plus an interest-free $10-a-month additional down payment for two years.

The monthly carrying payments will not exceed the rents now paid to CHA. Such rents are 20 to 30 per cent below the private Chicago market.

The payment plan was made possible by a new combination of financial arrangements. Charles R. Swibel, chairman of the CHA and the principal deviser of the plan, said that interest rates will vary from zero to 6 per cent, depending on the purchaser's income.

In addition, the CHA will accept a 100 per cent, 40-year mortgage at the $175,000 it spent for the houses when they were built 17 years ago. The initial debt has been paid off.

Swibel and Leo Dillon, a Chicago transit authority ticket agent who has nine children and is chairman of the Tenants Council for Racine Court, as the project is called, predicted that about 90 per cent of the tenants will buy their homes.

"I think this is the best thing that could happen," said Dillon.

The Lincoln We Remember

Perhaps the most tragic thing about Abraham Lincoln, the man of many tragedies, was that he was not permitted to live long enough to help "bind up the nation's wounds," as he urged his countrymen to do in his second inaugural address. He made his plea a month before he was murdered by a demented agent of destiny.

Ironically, Lincoln, the man of peace, was fated to know nothing but war in the four years and one month of his presidency. The humanitarian and war leader was forced to direct the spending of the flower of the nation's youth and the substance of its wealth in a conflict whose dimensions ever today stagger the mind.

Yet, the greatest irony of all, it is this Lincoln that we cherish, not the commander-in-chief, not the strategist, not the preserver of the Union, though he was all of these.

It is the boy studying by light of hearth fire, the backwoods lawyer, the sad-faced humorist, the President who left his bed to sign a pardon for a soldier.

It is the Lincoln the healer whose memory we honor, the gentle man, the eloquent peacemaker in the midst of battle.

Tested in the terrible crucible of war blotted out by an assassin's bullet, his vision of a nation dedicated to justice of all men nevertheless endures and continues to inspire us.

Because of this, the tragedy of his death becomes a triumph and all the ironies dissolve away.

The New Freedom

A new political emblem was raised by Richard M. Nixon in his campaign for the Republican nomination for President. Adopting a strongly inspired tone, the former Vice President said the nation was suffering from a "crisis of the spirit" under the Johnson Administration. To give the nation the lift of an impelling dream, he said, "It is time to move on to a new freedom."

Explaining his concept, Nixon struck at the very roots of the New Deal as conceived by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Johnson's idol and preceptor. "The old negative freedoms—freedom from hunger, freedom from want, freedom from fear—are no longer enough," he said. "The new freedom has to mean freedom for the poor as well as for the rich, freedom for black as well as for white, and it has to mean not only freedom from but freedom to. It means freedom to grow, freedom to choose, freedom to travel, freedom to create, freedom to work—and freedom to enjoy the fruits of our labors. Let us recognize that rights have no meaning—freedom has no meaning—without the opportunity to exercise those rights and to use that freedom."

For millions of Americans, especially the young and the poor, Nixon said that America no longer is the symbol of liberty and hope. The nation's historic commitment to expand individual freedom has lost its meaning for the world and for America. To expand opportunity and recapture the vitality of the American ideal, Nixon called for programs that would encourage the full participation of private enterprise in the search for social justice.

American industry, he said, is not only technologically equipped but also eager to provide housing and jobs for the poor. Its leaders have developed a social conscience far beyond anything the leaders of the twenties and thirties would have recognized. He means to tap that reservoir of power, not big government, to work for the public. He would put the greatest engine of productivity the world has ever known at their service.

What the Vietnam War Really Means

WASHINGTON — "What is the Vietnam War all about?" People have asked each other this question, but satisfactory answers are rarely available because of the confusion created by the debate, inside and outside of Congress, between the supporters and opponents of American policy.

Some of the critics claim, first of all, that what happens 10,000 miles away is none of America's business. Another group says the United States is not winning the war, but is making claims of progress which are not true. Still another faction insists that the American military commanders don't know what they're doing and have no experience with the kind of war they're fighting.

A few of the members of Congress who have been to Vietnam say that the South Vietnamese are not giving wholehearted support to the American military operations and that the native population should furnish more troops. News dispatches tell from time to time about corruption and an alleged lack of enthusiasm by the South Vietnamese people for the American effort.

Realistically, almost anything could be written about a troubled and chaotic situation like that which exists in Vietnam. Under the Geneva Agreement of 1954, the country was divided at the 17th parallel, with the understanding that there would be a cessation of all hostilities and eventually free elections to bring about the unification of the two sections. The Communists in the north, however, boldly attempted to take over the south. The Soviet Union and Red China have aided the North Vietnamese with arms and money.

The assassination squad infiltrated into South Korea through the sector guarded by the U.S. Second Division. This is a rugged mountainous stretch, covered with brown brush, white birch, pine trees and patches of snow. The ground has been frozen hard by temperatures that remain below freezing, and at night often plunge below zero.

The Americans guard only 18 miles of the 151-mile demarcation line, but their small sector has become a favorite infiltration route for the North Koreans. Of the 591 confirmed infiltrators reported along the DMZ last year, 337 tried to come through the U.S. sector.

The GIs killed only 11 and captured 20. In contrast, the South Koreans killed or captured 109 of the 254 agents who probed their positions.

This doesn't mean the Americans are poorer soldiers. Many are battle-tested veterans of Vietnam, who leave their bunkers at night to lie on the frozen ground in the paths the infiltrators might take.

But Washington insists that our troops fight by Marquis of Queensbury rules against an unscrupulous enemy who violates the armistice terms almost nightly. The armistice, for example, forbids the laying of new mines. However, the North Koreans sneak into the U.S. sector at night and plant mines on the jeep trails and pathways used by the GIs. Despite this, the Americans still scrupulously refrain from planting mines.

Tough South Koreans
The South Koreans, less finicky about the truce terms, take whatever means are expedient to waylay infiltrators and terrorists. The tough, disciplined South Koreans are handicapped only by an appalling lack of modern equipment.

Most North Korean guerrillas are smuggled into the South by boat along the rugged southwestern coastline. Its coves and inlets offer many hiding places for the infiltrators, who sneak ashore one or two at a time, bury their arms, then wait to rendezvous with others.

Yet only one-third of the spotter stations manned by the police have telephones to sound an alarm. The 40,000 anti-guerrilla police are equipped with antiquated carbines, no match for the automatic, Soviet-made weapons that the guerrillas carry. In fact, 17,000 of the carbines are unserviceable and are carried merely for show.

The police are so short of transportation that one unit was obliged to rent a bus late last year to chase a band of infiltrators. The bus finally stalled on a steep incline, and the police were compelled to walk.

To patrol the coast they use 72 slow fishing boats, which the South Korean navy has seized from Japanese fishermen encroaching on South Korean fishing fields. South Korean fighters desperately need modern weapons, helicopters, searchlights, signal equipment and other supplies.

But a niggardly Uncle Sam, who is pouring billions into Vietnam to fight a guerrilla war, has been unwilling to spend a few dollars in Korea to stop a guerrilla war.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Religious Slain in Public in Red China

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The Communists' horrible murder recently of six American missionaries, three of whom were women, at the remote South Vietnamese leprosarium has prompted me to ask my former diplomatic colleagues of the Vatican in Rome about the treatment of the priests and nuns in Red China.

Here are the facts. They echo Czechoslovakian Bishop Paul Hnilica: "I have seen and felt the persecution." They echo what I heard Bishop Michael Klepacz of Lodz, Poland, say at the final session of the Ecumenical Council in Rome: "Peace, yes, but not at any price."

And they also echo my experience at the American Embassy in Budapest where Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty sought sanctuary and remains protected on the third floor. Cardinal Mindszenty, now 76, from the first day of his elevation to Cardinal has spent more than 85 per cent of his life in confinement. The armed Hungarian guards stood across the street, pleased as rats in a cheese factory. But if you had talked with this persecuted man you would find that confinement of the body can never fully mean confinement of the soul.

There are about three million Catholics in Red China. Mao Tse-tung first gave his support to the Catholic Church. But this was merely a wily propaganda move, employed to build up a pretext that the Communists had tried conciliation but it failed.

China had 120 bishops. Only 30 were Chinese. Today all foreign bishops have been expelled, the majority after first being imprisoned. Of the 30 Chinese bishops, 15 are in prison or have been killed.

There were more than 3,000 priests, 2,300 nuns, and nearly 800 friars who were foreigners. All 6,100 have been killed, imprisoned or expelled. Only the native clergy and members of religious orders are left. So few clergy remain that many Catholics die without being able to receive extreme unction.

No priest or nun can give religious instruction. The penalty is death. This is the Communist party's throat-hold on the future. Religious instruction perpetrates the faith in God. Even teaching sacred organ music is prohibited. There is an ancient Chinese saying: "He who would attack an emperor must kill him." Red China's official atheist doctrine has chosen these ways to kill the church. This banning of religious instruction is likewise true in all Sino-Soviet satellite countries—from Hungary, Poland, East Germany, etc., to North Vietnam, North Korea, Tibet, etc.

All priests of every rank, friars and nuns are forced, in addition, to work at menial labor. Mao's Communist Central Labor Bureau in each province assigns the additional jobs and exerts control this way. Several bishops are working as peasants; others as carpenters, textile factory roustabouts, etc., with public announcement to all other workers to humiliate them. All must wear civilian clothes.

No priest can celebrate Mass after 8 a.m. Some churches are open but (again typical) are also used by the Communist party as dance halls, party festivities headquarters and other desecrating activities.

Apparently the church's disruption has been more complete in Red China than in Western European Sino-Soviet satellites where the roots are older and broader. In Czechoslovakia, for example, traditionally about 70 per cent of the Czechs are Catholics. Mao's party has created an association of "patriot priests" whose actual background in many cases is totally obscure. The party has announced that these "patriot priests" have declared that while they "remain faithful" to Rome for all that concerns Catholic dogma they "consider themselves" independent from the political and administrative point of view.

They have started to elect their own bishops. The Vatican has excommunicated these designates unless they accepted under duress. The first high prelates so affected were the Archbishop of Siangyang, Msgr. Pu Ci-ue; the Bishop of Chungking, Msgr. Paul Wang; the vicar general of Nanking, Msgr. Li Wei-wang; and the vicar caputular of Shanghai, Msgr. Francis Xavier Chang.

The assassinations of prelates and nuns are invariably public, as occurred at the leprosarium in South Vietnam, where the bodies of five of the missionaries of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, the largest Protestant missionary force (138) in the country, were reportedly booby-trapped in an effort to kill the rescuers of our country's dead.

This is the face of our enemy.

Tenants Will Be Owners

By RUTH MOORE

Chicago Sun-Times Special
CHICAGO, Feb. 8—A Chicago Public Housing project will be sold to its tenants in the first action of its kind in any American city.

Mayor Richard J. Daley and the Chicago Housing Authority announced that 122 publicly owned row houses in an outlying area of small homes will be turned into a tenant-owned co-operative under the guidance of the national, nonprofit Foundation for Co-operative Housing.

"A Godsend," "an opportunity," "more than we ever expected," said three of the tenants who will become owners as they stepped up to the microphones at a press conference where the announcement was made. David L. Krooth, chairman of the legislative committee of the National Housing Conference, who was in Chicago for the occasion, predicted that Congress will enact legislation to permit housing authorities elsewhere to follow the Chicago plan for converting low-income public housing tenants into "proud" owners.

The 122 row houses to be sold were built in 1950 with state bond issue funds, and did not come under restrictions that would bar the similar sale of federally financed public housing. Sixty-three of them have three bedrooms, 46 have four and 13 have five.

The Sale Plan

Under the sale plan, tenants may buy the houses in which they live for a down payment of $200, plus an interest-free $10-a-month additional down payment for two years.

The monthly carrying payments will not exceed the rents now paid to CHA. Such rents are 20 to 30 per cent below the private Chicago market.

The payment plan was made possible by a new combination of financial arrangements. Charles R. Swibel, chairman of the CHA and the principal deviser of the plan, said that interest rates will vary from zero to 6 per cent, depending on the purchaser's income.

In addition, the CHA will accept a 100 per cent, 40-year mortgage at the $1,715,000 it spent for the houses when they were built 17 years ago. The initial debt has been paid off.

Swibel and Leo Dillon, a Chicago transit authority ticket agent who has nine children and is chairman of the Tenants Council for Racine Court, as the project is called, predicted that about 90 per cent of the tenants will buy their homes.

"I think this is the best thing that could happen," said Dillon.

Viet Cong Won Headlines, Suffered Military Defeat

BY KEYES BEECH
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

SAIGON, Feb. 8—Things are not so bad as they might seem.

The evidence is growing that while the communists won the headlines and inflicted grievous damage on South Vietnam, they have suffered a major military defeat.

This could be the long-awaited turning point of the war in favor of the United States and its allies. That statement is made with fingers crossed. Along with a number of other people, I have been wrong before about this war. Besides, the communists still pack plenty of punch.

But during the seven-day period ended Tuesday they lost 21,000 men, including some of their best troops. This is nearly 25 per cent of all the enemy killed in 1967. Even allowing for a certain amount of exaggeration, that is a lot of dead communists.

Measured in terms of its political and psychological impact here and abroad, the enemy's surprise Tet (New Year) offensive against 35 to 40 towns and cities was a stunning success.

But a growing stack of evidence indicates the communists were after more than that. They actually fought their way into Saigon and other cities with the hope if not the conviction, that they could stay.

This is a conclusion that most observers and even top military men were reluctant to accept simply because they couldn't believe it. Yet all the evidence points in that direction.

If the communists did intend to stay, then they have suffered a major setback. For they have not been able to hold a single populated place. And in bitter house-to-house fighting they are being dislodged from isolated pockets they still hold.

Which is not to say they aren't still trying.

Intelligence reports, including captured enemy documents, prisoner interrogations and various other sources, gave this picture of the communist offensive:

It was "general counter-attack" or "go-for-broke" action aimed at cracking the Saigon government and ending the American will to carry on the war. This was supposed to soften up the allies for peace talks that would result in a coalition government.

It failed because it did not bring on the "general uprising" Communist leaders had promised. With the possible exception of Hue, the anti-foreign old imperial capital, there was not a single case where the Communist invaders got support from the local population.

The people's failure to respond to the "liberation" forces did not necessarily mean they were pro-government. It meant they wanted no part of either side.

Jerry Hickey, 42, a Rand Corp. specialist on Vietnam who probably knows more about this country than any other American, was in Ban Men Theut, in the central highlands, when the Communists invaded the city.

"They went from house to house trying to organize demonstrations," Hickey reported. "They got nowhere."

In Cholon, Saigon's Chinese twin city, there was even a show of pro-government sentiment, civilians were supplying South Vietnamese troops with oranges, water and soda pop. More important, they volunteered information on where the Viet Cong were holed up.

Viet Cong soldiers who hit Saigon and other cities were cruelly deceived by their leaders. They were indoctrinated to believe they would be welcomed by mass demonstrations. Many of them were boys aged 14 to 16, newly recruited and poorly trained.

A Vietnamese ranger commander recalled two instances where squads of Viet Cong teen agers surrendered because they were hungry and out of ammunition.

Nothing was better proof of Viet Cong determination to stay and hold than the fact they were issued no withdrawal orders. The Viet Cong planned everything down to the last detail, but in the bales of enemy documents not one gave any plans for withdrawal. The reason was supplied by a captured Viet Cong security chief: "It would have been bad for morale."

In the Central Highlands where the enemy suffered heavy losses, prisoners said they were told: "take your objective or don't come back."

North Vietnamese officers who took part in the attack on Nha Trang did so without any hope of success but only to aid the over all offensive.

An intelligence assignment of the Viet Cong attack on Bien Hoa, 12 miles from Saigon, was revealing. Here again there were no orders covering a withdrawal and Viet Cong troops were promised there would be almost no opposition.

They were also promised a "revolutionary new weapon," presumably the enemy's new 240-mm rocket, which they somehow failed to maneuver into a firing position.

The Viet Cong battalion commander set up his command post in the heart of Bien Hoa. There was no justification for this unless he intended to stay. The command post remained naked and exposed until it was shelled and overrun 30 hours later.

Battered and disillusioned, the Viet Cong streamed back through Ho Nai village, a Catholic settlement. Some reportedly turned themselves in to local priests.

A Communist "order of the day" picked up by troops of the U. S. 25th Division on Feb. 3 further illuminated Viet Cong strategy. Read to all attacking Viet Cong troops on the eve of battle, it went as follows:

"Order of the day, headquarters. Southern Liberation army. Move forward to final victory, the Tet greeting of chairman Ho (Chi Minh) is actually a combat order for our entire army and population to carry out the all-out attack.

"And in compliance with the attack order of the presidium, Central Committee, South Vietnam Liberation Army, all cadres and combatants should move forward to:

"Carry out attacks on the headquarters of the enemy, to disrupt the U. S. Imperialists' will for aggression and to smash the puppet government and puppet army."

"Restore power to the people, complete the liberation of the 14,000,000 people of South Vietnam, fulfill our revolutionary task of establishing Democracy throughout the country."

"This will be the greatest battle ever fought in the history of our country. It will bring forth worldwide change, but it will also require many sacrifices. It will decide the fate of our fatherland and will shake the world to its foundation."

These were brave words. But by Feb. 4 both Hanoi and Peking radio broadcasts had changed their tune. They still claimed victory, but their tone was less confident.

Keep the U. S. Spread Thin Is Red's Strategy

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A pattern is beginning to develop in the seemingly unrelated Communist provocative acts popping up throughout East Asia.

Consider the recent list of Red activities:

The North Korean capture of the USS Pueblo on Jan. 22.

The brazen attempt by North Korean commandos to assassinate South Korea's President Park Chung Hee in Seoul on Jan. 20.

The sharp rise a number of months back of North Korean military provocations in the demilitarized zone.

The heavy infiltration of North Korean agents into South Korea.

The great increase in Soviet military aid for the North Vietnamese of late.

The recent North Vietnamese military attacks in Laos, which this reporter's Asian contacts say are of a more aggressive character than the periodic rice and opium gathering attacks of the past year or so.

The sustained Communist-organized and led Hong Kong riots of a few months back.

The increasing Communist terrorist activity in Thailand and the stepped-up Red Provocations in Burma.

The arrogantly open North Vietnamese military actions in Cambodia which seem designed to get U.S. and South Vietnamese troops to move into that country.

The heavy build-up of North Vietnamese forces in the Khe Sanh area and the suicidal Viet Cong attacks on 45 cities and towns in South Vietnam.

Add to these incidents, the Arab-Israeli war and the Soviet harassing of American warships in the Mediterranean.

These widespread Communist actions add up to three conclusions:

The Communists hope to create so many problems for the United States worldwide in places where Americans have vital interests that we might be tempted to cut our losses in Vietnam and agree to Ho Chi Minh's terms for peace.

The Communists desire to widen the area of the war in Southeast Asia and thus stretch U.S. troops so thin they will be unable to handle Red military infiltration or protect South Vietnam's people.

The Viet Minh used this technique very effectively against the French in Indochina. Mao's Communist troops used the same methods against the Japanese in China during World War II.

The Communists want to get the United States tied down in so many trouble spots this country will be reluctant to move men and equipment from these areas to South Vietnam.

If the Reds can keep the waters ruffled in Korea and Thailand, the Koreans and Thais would be less willing to chance sending sizable additional units to Vietnam.

French Policy Toward U.S. Shows Change

By PAUL GHALI
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

PARIS — Two subtle changes in Gaullist policy toward the United States have marked the last days as Ambassador to France of Charles Eustis Bohlen, the most popular American ambassador here since the war.

After a visit to the Winter Olympic Games at Grenoble, Bohlen will take the plane to Washington tomorrow, where he will be Deputy Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs.

One of the changes in Gaullist attitude toward the United States was negative and one positive. They were so unexpected that they led superficial analysts of Gaullism to wonder if President Charles De Gaulle might not have resolved to modify his rather abrupt manners toward Washington and adopt ways more in conformity with the old friendship between the two countries.

The first change was seen in the official silence on all world problems affecting the United States, obviously resulting from orders of De Gaulle.

The sharp comments on Washington's policies that had become almost a weekly feature of French Cabinet meetings have ceased.

Recent developments in Vietnam have not even brought such remarks as "We told you a long time ago" from French official commentators, who often are inclined to be patronizing about Southeast Asian affairs.

The Pueblo capture was described after a cabinet meeting in Paris as a problem in which France was not concerned. Even Gaullist propagandists failed to register any satisfaction about the fact that France, being no longer a NATO member, would not automatically be involved in any conflict today in which the United States took part.

A more positive change in Gaullist manners was the warmth surrounding the farewell visit that Bohlen paid to the French president.

Draft Objectors Find Boards Take Hard Line

By DICK BARNES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two burgeoning organizations are spending more than $200,000 a year to counsel conscientious objectors to military service, but Selective Service says there's been no Vietnam-period increase in the proportion of young men winning such exemptions.

Spokesmen for two counseling groups contend draft boards are taking an increasingly hard line in ruling on applications for conscientious objector deferments.

The Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors, headquartered in Philadelphia, helps, among others, "selective objectors," so called because they object to only one war—the one in Vietnam. The National Service Board for Religious Objectors, working a block from the White House, doesn't accept the selective principle.

J. Harold Sherck, executive secretary of the National Service Board, said in an interview the change in draft board attitudes toward conscientious objectors, or COs, "has been showing up only lately. Very lately we've been getting some cases that seem to indicate a growing hard line."

Arlo Tatum, 45, executive secretary of the Central Committee, told a reporter that "war psychology has made it more difficult" to get a CO classification.

"The open hostility of the national director (Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey) toward dissent has had a real impact on local boards," said Tatum.

Conscientious objectors can apply for either of two classifications: —I-O, meaning they refuse al Service Board. It maintains a nationwide network of lay counselors, cooperating lawyers and a mailing list of 19,000 from whom it solicits funds. It was founded in 1948 by pacifist and religious groups.

The National Service Board, founded in 1940, is financed about half by churches and half by individuals. It deals with many appeals from Mennonites and Brethren. Five years ago, it was spending about $23,000 annually; now it has a $53,000 budget for its staff of six.

Both organizations insist they don't tell a man what to say to his draft board, but only advise him of legal rights and consequences, and help him clarify his own thinking.

Tatum and Sherck both insisted that they don't run any underground railways to Canada for men fleeing the draft. Each said he'd rather see such men stay in the United States.

"But sometimes in my more imaginative moments," said Tatum, "I wonder what would happen if all 5,000 (the number of draft-avoiders he estimates are in Canada) came marching back across the border and said: 'Here we are, what are you going to do?'"

not identified immediately, the troopers sped to Plattekill where the driver pointed out the place where he had left the three men.

Traced to Home

The escapees were traced to the home of Luis Rosario, 35, of the Cistis Cottage in Plattekill. Rosario is a brother-in-law of one of the escapees identified as Anselmo Martinez, of the Bronx. Troopers learned that Rosario had left sometime before the troopers arrived and reportedly was heading towards New York City.

The four troopers went in search of Rosario's car, which they overtook on Route 32. The Plattekill man, who authorities said was taking his brother-in-law and the other two men to New York City, was immediately placed under arrest on a charge of hindering police prosecution.

Rosario was taken before Police Justice James F. Palen. He pleaded guilty to the charge, authorities said, and sentencing was deferred until a later date. Fishkill State Police identified the other two men apprehended with Martinez as Joseph Rivera, 19, and Conrad Van Netti, 22, both of the Bronx. The three escapees were charged with escaping from custody, second degree, a felony. They will be arraigned later on those charges.

Police said all six of the men were returned to the rehabilitation center as authorities continued investigation to learn where the men obtained the saw blades used in making the daring escape.

Draft Objectors Find Boards Take Hard Line

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two burgeoning organizations are spending more than $200,000 a year to counsel conscientious objectors to military service, but Selective Service says there's been no Vietnam-period increase in the proportion of young men winning such exemptions.

Spokesmen for two counseling groups contend draft boards are taking an increasingly hard line in ruling on applications for conscientious objector deferments.

The Central Committee for Conscientious Objectors, headquartered in Philadelphia, helps, among others, "selective objectors," so called because they object to only one war—the one in Vietnam. The National Service Board for Religious Objectors, working a block from the White House, doesn't accept the selective principle.

J. Harold Sherk, executive secretary of the National Service Board, said in an interview the change in draft board attitudes toward conscientious objectors, or C.O.s, "has been showing up only lately. Very lately we've been getting some cases that seem to indicate a growing hard line."

Arlis Tatum, 45, executive secretary of the Central Committee, told a reporter that "war psychology has made it more difficult" to get a C.O. classification.

"The open hostility of the national director (Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey) toward dissent has had a real impact on local boards," said Tatum.

Conscientious objectors can apply for either of two classifications: —I-O, meaning they refuse military induction entirely; al Service Board. It maintains a nationwide network of lay counselors, cooperating lawyers and a mailing list of 19,000 from whom it solicits funds. It was founded in 1948 by pacifist and religious groups.

The National Service Board, founded in 1940, is financed about half by churches and half by individuals. It deals with many appeals from Mennonites and Brethren. Five years ago, it was spending about $23,000 annually; now it has a $53,000 budget for its staff of six.

Both organizations insist they don't tell a man what to say to his draft board, but only advise him of legal rights and consequences, and help him clarify his own thinking.

Tatum and Sherk both insisted that they don't run any underground railroads to Canada for men fleeing the draft. Each said he'd rather see such men stay in the United States.

"But sometimes in my more imaginative moments," said Tatum, "I wonder what would happen if all 5,000 (the number of draft avoiders he estimates are in Canada) came marching back across the border and said: 'Here we are, what are you going to do?'"

Selective Service said it keeps no record of how many men have applied unsuccessfully for I-O or I-A-O exemptions.

Officials said there are 1.7 conscientious objectors per 1,000 draft registrants, the same as during the Korean War. During World War II the ratio was 1-to-1,000, but officials said that was more "popular." Also in those years C.O.s were sent to camps rather than given national service jobs.

Selective Service figures do not show how many C.O. exemptions were granted in any one year but only how many such exemptions are in force at any given date.

The two counseling organizations claim they do not keep tabs on how many inquiries they receive or attempt to figure their "batting average" for winning C.O. classifications.

The Central Committee budget of $30,000 in 1963 has quintupled to $150,000, supporting a staff of 19. It personally counseled 5,653 persons in 1967, triple the 1963 figure said Tatum. He said 3,000 cases are active.

Tatum's organization is less church-oriented than the National Service Board.

Levitt Sees State Saving $7 Million

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Tax Department will show next week it also can give as well as take away as it plays host to first two stages of the monthly three-stage drawing of the New York State lottery.

After the drawings Monday and Tuesday at the state agency here, the proceedings shift to the final stage Wednesday at the RKO Proctor Theater in Yonkers.

Levitt offered a bill that would require the state to set aside only enough funds to cover any defaults of the loans guaranteed by the New York Higher Education Assistance Corp. (HEAC).

At present, he said, the state appropriates much more money for this purpose — enough to keep a guaranty loan fund equal to 10 per cent of all outstanding loans. But, he continued, it is not necessary to maintain such a large fund.

Levitt said the fund now totaled nearly $30 million, while the HEAC has had to spend only $3 million to cover defaults.

"At a time when taxpayers are being asked to shoulder an ever-increasing burden," Levitt said, "it is unfair to tie up nearly $30 million in a fund that may never be used."

not identified immediately, the troopers sped to Plattekill where the driver pointed out the place where he had left the three men.

Traced to Home

The escapees were traced to the home of Luis Rosario, 45, of the Cistis Cottage in Plattekill. Rosario is a brother-in-law of one of the escapees identified as Anselmo Martinez, of the Bronx. Troopers learned that Rosario had left sometime before the troopers arrived and reportedly was heading towards New York City.

The four troopers went in search of Rosario's car, which they overtook on Route 32. The Plattekill man, who authorities said was taking his brother-in-law and the other two men to New York City, was immediately placed under arrest on a charge of hindering police prosecution.

Rosario was taken before Police Justice James F. Palen. He pleaded guilty to the charge, authorities said, and sentencing was deferred until a later date.

Fishkill State Police identified the other two men apprehended with Martinez as Joseph Rivera, 19, and Conrad Van Netti, 22, both of the Bronx. The three escapees were charged with escaping from custody, second degree, a felony. They will be arraigned later on those charges.

Police said all six of the men were returned to the rehabilitation center, as authorities continued investigation to try to learn where the men obtained the saw blades used in making the daring escape.

Vietnam Vet Scuffles With Socialists

DETROIT (AP) — A soldier from Canton, N.Y., scuffled Saturday with some of the delegates to the seventh national convention of the Young Socialist Alliance, police said.

Pfc. John Freego, 19, who recently returned from Vietnam, criticized the Socialists for demanding that American forces leave Vietnam. Freego said they do not realize the majority of GIs in Vietnam wanted to stay there because of "self-pride."

Several police cars were called to the hotel convention site.

Fred Halstead, presidential candidate of the Socialist Workers Party, said at the convention that the "American military is being used as a private protection agency for United States big business."

Other speakers included Paul Boutell of Harlem, a Black Power advocate and vice presidential candidate on Halstead's tickets, and Pfc. Howard Petrick, 22, of Erie Pa., who said he was a Trotsky-Marxist.

All Saugerties Trustees Are Renominated

All Saugerties Village incumbent trustees were recently renominated by the Village Party to run for reelection on March 19.

Named at the meeting held in Dutch Arms Chapel, John Street, Saugerties, were Charles Steele, Richard Underhill Jr., and Arthur D. York. The Village Party candidates have been running unopposed for several years and it appears there will be no opposition again this year.

Named to the committee on vacancies were Vernon Joe Benjamin, Robert M. Moser, and Richard J. Luther.

Zaretzki Aide
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Robert S. Herman, a former assistant state budget director, has been named executive assistant to Senate Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki.

The post pays $20,000 a year. Zaretzki, president of last year's Constitutional Convention, announced the appointment Sunday. Herman served as assistant to Travia during the convention.

Warning Given On Heaters

The Kingston Fire Department today made an urgent request of anyone who may have purchased a Sears, Roebuck "baseboard" through the "wall" gas heater to contact the fire department immediately. The heater may leak deadly carbon monoxide gas.

Firm Recalls 6,000

The company itself issued a release claiming that it is recalling some 6,000 of the items which it "regards as unsafe."

It identified the units as "four models of its gas fired baseboard thru-wall heater."

They are Homart model numbers 133.72561 or 133.725611; 133.72562 or 133.725621; and 133.72566 or 133.725661.

The plate showing model numbers is located on the top of the burner box.

Sears said its recall division was reviewed with the U.S. Public Health Service and the American Gas Association, which will cooperate with Sears in an effort to locate the burners.

James W. Button, vice-president of merchandising, said that most of the 6,000 were sold between September, 1962 and December, 1966. They were last offered for regular sale in a catalog circular in August and September, 1966. A few remaining units were sold in retail stores during 1967, he added.

"Every effort will be made by Sears retail stores and catalog facilities to locate and replace all of these heaters," he said.

Because many customers purchase and install equipment themselves, he added, it will be difficult to locate them unless they notify Sears.

All Others Safe

Button emphasized that all other models of Sears gas baseboard heaters are constructed differently and are safe.

In addition to Sears public announcement, the company will advertise in newspapers and catalogues. The ads will urge the owners of the units being recalled to shut them off immediately and contact the manager of the nearest Sears store or catalog sales office.

Captain Hugh Greer, of the fire department's Fire Prevention Bureau, claimed that anyone having bought such an item may call the fire department also.

Sears vice president Button said that the Chicago-based company's decision to recall its heaters was based on the company's field investigation.

Some Defects

The investigation showed some of the units had developed defects, and in some cases produced measurable amounts of carbon monoxide.

"These defects developed," he added, "in spite of the fact that production units when tested passed all safety and performance standards without question. The design, while sound, did not allow sufficient latitude for human error."

The Well Child

NAIL-BITING HABIT A SIGN OF TENSION

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

A mother writes that her son bites his nails and the skin at the corners of his nails. This is one of several ways a child may use to ease his nervous tension.

Usually, such a child needs to have his self-confidence strengthened. Nagging, scolding or calling his attention to this habit will have the opposite effect so the best policy is to praise his accomplishments and avoid pushing him beyond the capabilities of his present development.

Q—My daughter, 3, has ingrowing toenails. Will she outgrow this? Can anything be done to help her?

A—You can't start too soon to take corrective measures and hope that it is not too late for your daughter to outgrow this painful condition. Most ingrowing nails are caused by cutting them with rounded corners instead of letting the corners grow out and cutting them straight across. Equally important is to make sure that her shoes and socks are large enough and properly fitted in a growing child this often means discarding shoes or socks before they are worn out. After bathing your daughter, place a small bit of cotton under both corners of the nails. This will prevent the nail from cutting into the skin, relieve pain and prevent infection.

Q—What would be the effects on a nursing child if the mother was taking ergot?

A—Ergot is one of the drugs that is secreted in the milk of a mother who is taking the drug. It should not be taken by a nursing mother because it could cause ergot poisoning in the child.

Q—Could frequent urination in a 5-year-old girl be caused by an allergy to some food if all the urine tests are negative?

A—This is most unlikely. Frequent urination in a child who has no kidney or bladder disease is more apt to be due to nervous excitement, chilling or drinking a large amount of fluid.

Q—My son had pylorospasm from two weeks till about 10 months of age. He was not operated on and didn't regain his birth weight till he was three months old. Could his son or daughter inherit this from him?

A—This congenital condition sometimes runs in families? It is more likely to occur in boys than in girls. When it occurs, it is usually in a first-born.

Q—Our son, 5, has what one skin specialist calls hyperkeratosis and another calls pachonychia congenita. Are these the same? What is the best treatment?

A—Hyperkeratosis is an abnormal thickening of the skin and pachonychia is an abnormal thickening of the nails. The two conditions are often associated, especially in children with ichthyosis. There is no effective treatment for these conditions.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Joe, Schoenbrun Slate Debate

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick will face former CBS news commentator David Schoenbrun in a debate on Vietnam Sunday, Feb. 18 at 7:45 p. m. at Poughkeepsie's First Presbyterian Church.

The debate is being sponsored by the Dutchess County Council of Churches. Congressman Resnick travelled to South Vietnam in 1967 to inform himself personally on the situation there. It was the second Vietnam visit for the Ellenville Democrat.

Schoenbrun is currently at Columbia University where he teaches a one year course on Vietnamese history. He has also travelled to Southeast Asia and in 1967 visited North Vietnam. For 14 years he was the Paris Bureau chief for CBS, and in 1961 was appointed chief Washington correspondent for the network.

The purpose of the Council of Churches sponsoring the debate, according to the Rev. William H. Edwards, council vice-president, is to "increase public understanding of the issues, and to raise the level of discussion on this subject."

"We believe the debate format will make each participant especially responsible for the position he holds," Rev. Edwards said.

Moderator for the debate will be the host pastor, the Rev. Paul Rutgers of the Poughkeepsie Presbyterian Church. General chairman of the debate committee is Mrs. Martin Donovan.

Other chairmen are: Mrs. Barth Brooker, posters; Mrs. William Edwards, tickets and Wesley Vicent, publicity.

BENEFICIAL GAIN — Reginald J. Kelly (C), former manager of Beneficial Finance Co., 319 Wall Street, turns keys over to his successor, William S. Kelsey, former Saugerties branch manager. Kelly has been promoted to field auditor with the loan firm. Harold J. Sampson, field supervisor for the Hudson Valley area, also was on hand to wish both men luck in their new assignments. # If we weren't sure of winning, we wouldn't be making comparisons.

Pontiac vs the so-called low-priced cars.

You might find a better description for them when you know Catalina has a 400-cu.-in. V-8, 121-inch wheelbase, Wide-Track, and all for a price you might have to pinch yourself to believe.

Pontiac vs economy cars.

All Tempests come with an OHC Six developing 175 hp on regular. If that isn't enough, V-8's go to 320 hp. Tie that to Wide-Track and find out what an economy car can be.

Joe, Schoenbrun Slate Debate

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick will face former CBS news commentator David Schoenbrun in a debate on Vietnam Sunday, Feb. 18 at 7:45 p. m. at Poughkeepsie's First Presbyterian Church.

The debate is being sponsored by the Dutchess County Council of Churches. Congressman Resnick travelled to South Vietnam in 1967 to inform himself personally on the situation there. It was the second Vietnam visit for the Ellenville Democrat.

Schoenbrun is currently at Columbia University where he teaches a one year course on Vietnamese history. He has also travelled to Southeast Asia and in 1967 visited North Vietnam.

For 14 years he was the Paris Bureau chief for CBS, and in 1961 was appointed chief Washington correspondent for the network.

The purpose of the Council of Churches sponsoring the debate, according to the Rev. William H. Edwards, council vice-president, is to "increase public understanding of the issues, and to raise the level of discussion on this subject."

"We believe the debate format will make each participant especially responsible for the position he holds," Rev. Edwards said.

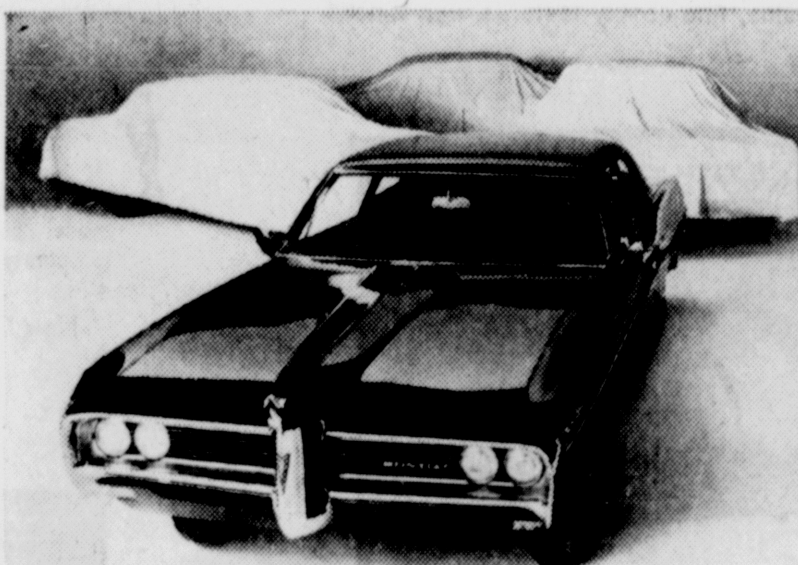

Moderator for the debate will be the host pastor, the Rev. Paul Rutgers of the Poughkeepsie Presbyterian Church. General chairman of the debate committee is Mrs. Martin Donovan.

Other chairmen are: Mrs. Barth Brooker, posters; Mrs. William Edwards, tickets and Wesley Vicent, publicity.

BENEFICIAL GAIN — Reginald J. Kelly (C), former manager of Beneficial Finance Co., 319 Wall Street, turns keys over to his successor, William S. Kelsey, former Saugerties branch manager. Kelly has been promoted to field auditor with the loan firm. Harold J. Sampson, field supervisor for the Hudson Valley area, also was on hand to wish both men luck in their new assignments. ## Three Injured In Highland Circle Flip

Three persons were injured and a fourth narrowly escaped unhurt early today when the cars in which they were riding hit asphalt curbing at the Highland Traffic circle on Route 9W and flipped through the air until landing on the pavement.

Highland State Police cited both drivers for failure to keep to the right. They were Anne Kirnan, 19, of Walden, and Jay Alexander, 19, also of Walden. The vehicles were traveling north and instead of turning at the traffic circle they continued in a straight course and hit the curbing.

According to troopers, Miss Kirnan sustained a broken nose and lacerations of the face, and a passenger in her car, Eleanor McGowan, 17, of Highland, received facial cuts and a whiplash of the neck. Troopers said their heads went through the windshield of the car.

Alexander suffered lacerations of the nose. A passenger, Terrence Gruesser, 20, of Newburgh, was not injured, authorities reported.

Consumer Protection Today Is Complicated

BUSINESS MIRROR — In this age of professional consumerism, a visit through the files of the Better Business Bureau brings a nostalgic reminder of how clever, outrageous and devious were the promoters preposterously simple were the good old fashioned frauds. Clever marketing, deceptive rebottling cheap cologne in packaging, intricate credit pensive looking performe bot-terms, questionable claims and tles. Husbands appeared more guilible than wives, especially in the spring when the itinerant contractor made his yearly round, ringing doorbells on Saturday morning with charity in his voice and larceny in his heart. One such man, the BBB said, showed homeowners a basket of "loam" that would rebuild winter weary lawns. He'd scatter a bit on the lawn to show how it was done. "A dollar a basket," he'd say. "Not bad," the husband might reply.

Concerned With Fraud — But way back about two years ago consumer protection efforts seldom involved the main business establishment, as they do now, or delved into the complexities of the marketplace. They were concerned with outright fraud by patently fraudulent people. Respectable merchants and customers alike were joined in a common abhorrence of such boundaries. There were, for example, the song shark described in a BBB letter who collected $454,000 in fees from amateur song writers to whom he offered fame, fortune and glamor, and the dance instructor who sold $11,746 in dance lessons to an elderly woman. Among the most treacherous how clever, outrageous and devious were the promoters preposterously simple were the good old fashioned frauds. "Not bad," the husband might reply.

Shocked By Bill — One hundred baskets later, when the bluff staff was irrecoverably scattered all over the lawn, the husband came out to check on progress. That's when he got the bill and the shock of his life. Consumer protection in the old days was concerned with chain referral plans, home improvement swindles, bait-and-switch schemes, charity gyms, health reducing plans and others.

SHOOTING — A South Pittsburg, Tenn. policeman, Lee Beene, 58, has been transferred to the Jasper, Ga. jail after the fatal shooting of prominent Marion County politician Harry M. Ambrester, 60, (L) in the police station. Ambrester was shot to death during a fracas with Beene and City Sanitation worker Rex Birdwell, who was also shot and wounded by the same bullet. Beene, charged with murder, was transferred to Jasper because someone told Police Chief E. Dick Burrow that they were going to kill Beene (R). (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Pilot Safe At Home After Crash

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — A pilot who crash-landed his two-engine airplane in a farm field south of this city Saturday night later was found safe at home in Rochester by State Police.

More than a dozen troopers searched the wooded, hilly area in sub-zero temperatures for over two hours before learning that Russell Morturano, 41, had gotten a ride home with a passing motorist. A telephone call to his residence found him safe, they said.

The search party was dispatched when the control tower at Rochester-Monroe County Airport lost radio and radar contact with the Piper Apache plane. Minutes before, Morturano had reported that the craft's wings and carburetors were becoming heavily iced.

Morturano, who received his multi-engine license only a week before, was flying the brand new plane from Harrisburg, Pa. when the trouble developed. The craft suffered moderate damage to its body and left wing, but the pilot said a sore back was the only injury he suffered.

Morturano told a reporter he set fire to an abandoned woodshed in the field to keep warm.

Snow Squalls Hit State On Weekend

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Random squalls that dumped as much as 10 inches of wind-driven snow in Western New York over the weekend tapered off generally to flurries today.

The snow, accompanied by wind gusts that reached 32 miles an hour and temperatures that dipped below the teens, cut visibility for motorists and made roads slippery. All highways remained open, however.

Rural areas of Niagara County received up to 10 inches of snow between Saturday night and Sunday night, with an inch or more expected today, Niagara Falls, by contrast was dusted by only an inch of snow. Other western areas also received light amounts of snow, with minor blowing and drifting.

The Weather Bureau said calming winds and temperatures rising into the teens would be part of the clearing conditions.

Elsewhere in the state, generally clear skies were expected to continue today after below-zero readings in some areas.

Poughkeepsie Protest on Site Rejection

A mass rally attended by some 300 people met in Poughkeepsie last night to protest the Common Council's rejection of a property site for low income housing.

Sponsored by the Negro Ministerial Alliance, and meeting at the Beulah Baptist Church on Catherine Street, the protesters heard alliance official Merwyn Readles say that the housing situation in Poughkeepsie was "more deplorable than Europe, Detroit, Harlem, or Watts."

He called Mayor Raymond W. Mitchell's idea of creating an alternate site for the project on Pershing Avenue as a "diversionary tactic" and "a smoke screen."

The property that the protesters wanted was the Swenson property on Washington Avenue. Groups that participated in the rally included NAACP and the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

CD Police Meet Tonight

The Kingston-Ulster County Auxiliary Police will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Moose Hall, 82 Prince Street. Studies from the Police Manual will be resumed at this meeting.

Rosendale Entry — Donald De Puy of Rosendale reported to Ulster County Sheriff's Department that his place of business was entered some time Friday and $70 in cash was missing. De Puy, who operates a new gas station on Route 32 in the Village of Rosendale said entry was gained by breaking a rear window. He said the money was taken from under the cash register drawer. Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the Sheriff's Office is investigating.

Negro Boycott In S. Carolina

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP) — Sunday and overwhelmingly endorsed the boycott and other demands sent to the governor and the City Council. They expressed concern for the course of race relations in the city and objected to the presence of more than 600 imposed since Friday will continue until a state of emergency is over, the governor said.

In Columbia, Gov. Robert McNair's office said the guardsmen would remain as long as is necessary for the protection of the citizens. Dusk-to-dawn curfews were imposed.

Also demanded was the "immediate suspension of the law enforcement officers responsible for the police brutality" in racial violence that resulted in three deaths Thursday night. The violence for four days last week, in which 50 persons also were injured, was sparked by attempts of Negro college students to integrate a bowling alley.

The Rev. I. D. Newman, state field director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said action was wanted "immediately with no nonsense."

More than 800 persons representing a cross section of Orangeburg's Negro community met in Trinity Methodist Church

Boy Accidentally Shot, Pal's Gun Discharges

While hunting rabbits in a wooded area of the Town of Ulster north of the Kingston City line on Sunday, Gary Buboltz, 15, of 43 Jarrold Street, was accidentally shot in both legs when a shotgun of a companion discharged.

The boy was rushed to Kingston Hospital where his condition was listed as fair. BCI Investigator Richard Ryan and Trooper James Fitzgerald of the Kingston Substation, reported Buboltz and Joseph Klonowski, 16, of First Street, were hunting in the woods. At about 11:45 a.m., Buboltz and Klonowski were sitting on a log when Bilyou started to unload his 16-gauge shotgun. His finger apparently slipped and released the trigger as the gun discharged. The slug hit Buboltz in the left thigh, passed through the thigh and penetrated the right thigh.

The other youths notified authorities and the wounded boy was removed to the hospital.

Decline in Dollar's Value
Makes Debt Inflation Hedge

Q—We are in our mid 40s with no children and have had our money in a savings and loan program. We plan now to purchase our own home and can pay up to $45,000 in cash. We have been advised to get as big a mortgage as we can instead of paying cash. We would then invest in growth stocks for retirement. Mutual funds have been recommended to us, including Ivest and Keystone S-4. What do you recommend?—A.S.

A—You have had good advice, in my opinion. Because of inflation, which has nearly halved the real value of the dollar since 1939, I believe that a debt assumed now will be paid off with cheaper dollars 20 years hence. I would take as large a mortgage as you can safely manage and invest the rest of your funds in strong growth issues. I like Ivest, which has compiled a splendid record in a relatively short time, and I would buy some. I prefer Keystone S-3 to S-4 because it appears to have a better record and seems more conservative. I would put no more than $10,000 into these two funds, and with any balance I recommend Transamerica, Georgia-Pacific and Chicago Title & Trust. They should all work out well for you over a period of time.

Q—I have a $15,000 insurance that will come due soon. Should I leave this money with the company or invest in stocks or bonds so that it will increase in value when I retire?—F.W.

A—If you leave your money with an insurance company, I believe you will receive a fixed rate of return which cannot enhance the value of your capital. Bonds are fixed, too, and can do little in the way of helping your money grow. Good growth stocks can and probably will

Housing Rehab Will Highlight 10th Ward Meet

Rehabilitation of housing in the Tenth Ward will be the subject of tonight's meeting of the Tenth Ward Action Group at 8 p. m. in Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

Guest speakers will include Acting Mayor T. Robert Gallo, appearing in the place of Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan who is on sick leave until March 1, and the ward's alderman, Peter Fisher (Republican).

The Tenth Ward Action Group has been active since last October, meeting at least once a month on such problems as housing, urban blight in their ward, police protection, law enforcement and garbage collection.

Tonight's meeting should deal primarily with federal programs for housing rehabilitation referred to as housing code enforcement. Officials from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in New York City met with Mayor Garraghan and city building inspector George E. Radcliffe several weeks ago and declared the 10th Ward a priority area for housing code enforcement.

A figure of $750,000 had been mentioned at the talks. Under the program owner can borrow money at three per cent interest for up to 20 years to bring homes up to city housing code standards. Grants are also available for those persons earning less than $3,000 per year.

Consumer Protection Today Is Complicated

BUSINESS MIRROR
NEW YORK (AP) — In this age of professional consumerism, a visit through the files of the Better Business Bureau brings a nostalgic reminder of how clever, outrageous and preposterously simple were the good old fashioned frauds.

Clever marketing, deceptive packaging, intricate credit terms, questionable claims and other grey areas that now attract Washington's interest in the old days. Consumerism then was far less sophisticated.

Consumer protection today is complicated, as are many affairs directed from Washington. It is concerned with explaining the entire marketplace, in aiding the consumer, for example, in choosing from among 57 sizes of toothpaste, 30 of hairsprays and 200 of paper towels.

Concerned With Fraud
But way back about two years ago consumer protection efforts seldom involved the main business establishment, as they do now, or delved into the complexities of the marketplace. Among the most treacherous and deceivers were the promoters who bilked husbands out of millions of dollars at Christmas by rebottling cheap cologne in expensive looking perfume bottles.

Husbands appeared more gullible than wives, especially in spring when the itinerant contractor made his yearly round, ringing doorbells on Saturday morning and larceny in his heart.

One such man, the BBB said, showed homeowners a basket of rich "loam" that would rebuild winter weary lawns. He'd scatter a bit on the lawn to show how it was done. "A dollar a basket," he'd say. "Not bad," the husband might reply.

'New Bag of Tricks'

Chamber on 'Mag' Salesmen

Reports reaching the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce indicate a new twist has been added to the book of tricks of the magazine salesmen. Chamber Executive Vice President, Peter O. Allen reported that his office has received a number of calls from local residents indicating that they had been approached by a person claiming to be a representative of local business.

'Gift From Business'

The solicitor indicated that the local resident was being asked to accept a gift from the local business in the form of several magazine subscriptions. In several cases, the callers, being suspicious of the approach, checked with the local businesses in question. It was found that no authorized representatives were making any such offers either locally or elsewhere.

Allen indicated that the residents had been sufficiently vague in their knowledge of what was said to them and that it was not possible to ascertain the specific magazine sales agency responsible for this spurious pitch. He indicated that he had spoken to officials of the businesses involved. They had no knowledge of such an operation. It is certain that this activity does not represent any of the local business interests.

Gives Suggestions

Allen issued the following suggestions to persons who are solicited to purchase magazines or other merchandise over the phone.

"Be extremely cautious in accepting anything which is 'free.' Be certain that the receipt which you are signing is in fact a receipt and not a contract for payment. Be especially cautious with your signature. Normally, contracts contain a statement to the effect that the signatory has read the above contract and is fully aware of its provisions.

"Be especially wary of anyone who is giving away magazines, but asks you to pay for the postage. Magazine publishers do not wish their products to be given away. It is only through paid circulation that they can place a value on their advertising."

Allen noted that it is a specific violation of the National Better Business Bureau and Magazine Publisher's Association joint code of ethics for a magazine subscription solicitor to imply that the charge levied only with postage or handling fee is also a violation of that code to use the word free in relationship to the magazines which are being offered.

Allen indicated that the best way to discourage telephone solicitors if you are not interested in listening to them is to promptly hang up once it is determined that the call is from a sales agency. He said that the sales method of using the telephone is obviously successful and satisfactory to a large number of people otherwise it would not continue in such abundance. He indicated that he felt many people clung to a false sense of "courtesy" when they failed to just quietly hang up on someone who was taking their valuable time and offering a possibly unwanted service.

Welcomes Calls

Allen indicated that his office welcomed calls from consumers who question offers which were made to them and that he would be happy to give a report on the responsibility demonstrated by any area firm as reflected by the records of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce.

He said that this was just one of the services offered to area residents by the businessmen who support the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce through their membership.

City Swim Pool Plan

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Is Kingston ready for a $275,000 swim club? Two aldermen are presently checking into that question and are using a swimming pool in New Jersey as a model.

The aldermen, Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward) and Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward) have been working on this project for the past few months and today released figures on a swim club in Cresskill, N.J.

The main pool costs $115,000 with an additional $7,500 for a wading pool. Bathhouses cost $32,000, a filter system costs $7,000 and lights, parking lots, roads, and sidewalks cost another $50,000. There was an additional $14,000 for sod and seed for approximately four acres. Schantz noted that it cost another $50,000 for fill in Cresskill since the pool was built in a swamp. He added that this figure might not apply to Kingston.

The pool was built to accommodate 700 families of an average of four to a family. A 25 per cent use factor has been the average which works out to 700 persons using the main pool and the wading pool at any given time.

Financing, of course, has been the main obstacle in Kingston along with the availability of land. Schantz and Norton are still working on the land aspect but feel that Cresskill's financial setup is feasible for Kingston.

A single membership costs $50 with an additional $25 for a husband and wife. Each child, up to four children, is charged $5. Any additional children can participate free of charge. Cresskill created a municipal pool commission in conjunction with the city council which borrowed the money. All payments on the pool are made by the commission with no cost to the city.

Norton and Schantz admit the pool is a large undertaking for the city but say they have submitted their figures for public discussion.

The fact that the YMCA is conducting a $1,800,000 fund drive for a new facility is also a factor acknowledged by the two aldermen. The possibility of the city renting the new 'Y' for several days a week has also been discussed by Schantz and Norton.

Said Schantz today, "We will get back to the public from time to time as we get more information on this plan and others. We hope this will at least stimulate discussion and perhaps ideas will be forthcoming from the community. Kingston needs a municipal swimming pool."

Released on Bail

Harold Countryman, Sr., 46, of Highland, was arrested at 2:30 a. m. on the State Thruway near Rosendale on charges of drunk driving and operating a car in violation of a license restriction. Trooper Jerry Pine arraigned Countryman before Kingston Town Justice Robert Ferrigan, who adjourned hearing until a later date. Countryman was committed to jail but later released when $100 bail was posted.

Board Members Disturbed By Zena Contract Delay

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Although bids for construction of the new Zena Elementary School were opened nearly two months ago, awarding of contracts for various phases of the project has been delayed and presently is awaiting a decision from the State Commissioner of Education, Dr. James E. Allen.

Members of the Kingston Board of Education had hoped to award the bids early in January, but a stay order issued by Dr. Allen after a general contractor filed an appeal, blocked any action by the school district trustees regarding the awarding of bids.

The appeal was made by William Forrest, general contractor of Poughkeepsie, who submitted the second low bid of $823,000 for general construction for the new school. Stanley R. Benjamin, Inc., of Long Beach, had submitted the low bid of $819,940, a difference of $3,060.

Forrest had contended that two pumps included in specifications for the general contract should have been entered in the plumbing contract.

The appeal was brought to public attention at the Jan. 4 meeting of the Board of Education, when it was reported Dr. Allen had scheduled a hearing in Albany for Jan. 9. The date was later changed to the following Tuesday, and meanwhile it was decided that both parties involved should submit briefs. That was done.

The delay has "disturbed" board members, who contend their "hands are tied" and nothing can be done about awarding the contracts until a decision is received from Dr. Allen's office. "It is doubly disturbing," a spokesman for the school board said, "because all existing contracts for new schools in the state are written the same as the one for the Zena Elementary."

It was learned that the briefs submitted early last month were reviewed by the Legal Department.

ment of the State Education Department, and one source indicated the recommendations of the former department have been on the Commissioner's desk awaiting signature.

At the January meeting, the Board of Education authorized the issuance of $1,350,000 in serial bonds of the school district to pay the cost of construction of the new school.

Fourteen bids for general construction of Zena Elementary were submitted, ranging from the low of $819,940 to a high of $923,203 from I. and O. A. Slutsky, Inc., of Hunter.

Other bids submitted included four for plumbing with C.B. Strain & Son of S-ventures low with $81,800; sprinkler work, three bids with Port Sprinkler Corp. of Albany low with $14,976; five bids for kitchen work with Lewis Equipment Co., Albany low with $11,976; five bids for kitchen work with Lewis Equipment Co., Albany low with $11,989; seven bids for heating and ventilating with Tougher Heating & Plumbing of Menands low with $142,200; four bids for electric work with Joe E. O'Connor, Inc., of Kingston low with $79,989.

According to plans and specifications prepared by Harry Halverson Associates of Kingston, the new Zena school will comprise 14 classrooms with basic facilities to expand to a 21-classroom structure as needed.

In addition to the 14 classrooms there will be a two-story gymnasium, combination cafeteria and auditorium with stage, a library and music rooms together with the necessary facilities.

The main section of the building will be two stories with one story wing. The school will be located on 23-acre site near the junction of County roads 52 and 175 in the Zena area.

Allen noted that it is a specific violation of the National Better Business Bureau and Magazine Publisher's Association joint code of ethics for magazine subscription solicitors to imply that the charge levied for magazines is connected only with postage or handling. It is also a violation of that code to use the word free in relationship to the magazines which are being offered.

Allen indicated that the best way to discourage telephone solicitors if you are not interested in listening to them is to promptly hang up once it is determined that the call is from a sales agency. ## Echo I Satellite Dying After 7 Years of Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Echo I, the U.S. satellite that long has ranked as the brightest and most easily observed spacecraft orbiting the earth, appears to be about to die.

The Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md., confirms reports by amateur sky-watchers that the balloon-like Echo—observed by millions of people in virtually every country since its launching Aug. 12, 1960—may drop back to earth any time.

A Goddard spokesman said the North American Defense Command has forecast, on the basis of computer studies of the satellite's recent orbits, that it may fall into the earth's atmosphere about March 31.

But Echo I is a large, very light spherical object and therefore somewhat unpredictable.

The world's first passive communications satellite could disappear a week or two earlier than the computed date. Or, if the solar pressure that has been driving it earthward eases slightly, the sphere could remain aloft well into April.

Scientists attribute recurrent changes in its orbit to air drag—the friction resistance of the thin atmosphere to the satellite's surface—and to the solar wind, a product of the sun's energy.

On most spacecraft these effects are negligible, but Echo's light weight and great mass make it susceptible to the slight pressures.

Fashioned of mylar polyester coated with aluminum, the huge space ball, tall as a 10-story building, glowed like a headlight at night, sparkling in the sunshine that bathed its course.

Echo I excited such interest that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration published weekly local forecasts of the periods at which it could be seen.

Hundreds of newspapers printed the orbital schedules daily until interest waned with the advent of more satellites that could be seen—though not so brightly—with the naked eye.

Originally the spacecraft was estimated to have a lifetime of perhaps a year. In 1961 the Smithsonian Institution's Astrophysical Laboratory estimated Echo I would be destroyed either in April 1962, July 1963, or May 1964.

Goddard officials used the sparkling sky-rider as a "radio mirror" to bounce hundreds of two-way voice conversations and for relay of other types of high-quality communications across the United States, and between this country and Europe.

Vacancies Filled In Commission

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The top-heavy agenda of Ulster County Legislature Thursday several appointments and resolutions authorizing various other public works projects in addition to those mentioned in Friday's account of the session.

Appointments announced by Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz, Gardiner to the Community Action Commission included Paul M. Brazier, D-Saugerties; Richard D. Nace, R-2nd District; and John C. Sangaline, R-Kingston.

The county board approved the recommendations by Victor McCord, chairman of Ulster County Soil and Water Conservation District for appointments as legislative directors to the district, including Eugene O. Corey, R-9th District and C. Freeman Lasher, R-Saugerties.

Also the same resolution approved the appointment of Vernon A. Barnhart of Kripplush as a director of the district as a representative of the County Grange.

On recommendation by the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs, William J. Meyer of St. Remy and Harold Hauvers of Kingston were named as regular representative and alternate to the Fish and Wildlife Management Board.

Advisory Appointments

Ulster County Fire Advisory Board appointments include Carl Bush, Phoenixia; Albert Fox, Olivebridge; Oscar Lambert, Port Ewen; Richard McMullen, Marlboro; Granville Myer, Centerville; Charles Penney, Walkkill; Winfred Snyder, of Hurley, who is Ulster County Fire Coordinator; Mervin Doremus, Woodstock; J. Gregston Greer, Walkerville; Edward Mains, Port Ewen; Raymond J. Morris Jr., New Paltz; Oscar Newkirk of Kingston, who is city postmaster, and Eldred Smith, Modena.

The term is for one year expiring Dec. 31, 1968.

Three members of the Legislature named to the board include Lester C. Elmendorf, R-2nd District; C. Freeman Lasher, R-Saugerties, and E. Stirling Potter, R-7th District.

Marguerite Isaacs of Kingston, given the floor to address the afternoon session asked for support for the removal of the bounty system in Ulster County in relation to fox and bobcat for which the county has appropriated $1,100. Legislator Daniel Perry, R-Kingston advised her he would sponsor a resolution for presentation at a future meeting of the board.

A resolution introduced by Paul M. Brazier, D-Saugerties was the only proposal among the 59 presented that created a difference of opinion. The proposal asked memorializing or petitioning the state's representatives in the House and Senate to amend the naturalization laws to provide instruction to newly naturalized citizens how they can become eligible to vote. This would be a mandatory requirement for citizenship.

By a vote of 26 to 7 the county board directed that the resolution be referred to the County Clerk Committee for further study. Voting was nearly along party lines with all Democratic legislators voting against referral with two Republicans, Lasher of Saugerties and Brian R. White of the 9th District.

The board approved a proposal to have the county build a barricade blocking off the abandoned Van Wagner Road Bridge in the Town of Woodstock in accordance with a resolution filed by William R. West, R-Woodstock.

Approval was also given to a proposal to raise the height of Ulster County Bridge 140 on Cape Avenue, Village of Ellenville as requested by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers who are engaged in preparing plans for a $2,545,479 flood control program known as the Ellenville North Project. Cost of the bridge raising is $50,860.

Resolution Approved

A resolution providing for proper identification of county property under a uniform control system was approved. Another proposal approved the system of disposal of useable county property through the county auditor.

The legislators approved the use of state funds from the State Health Department in the amount of $42,970 when available for use in a rat control program in the county.

Permission was granted to the Kingston, Ellenville and New Paltz Chapters of the National Camping and Hiking Association to use the county fair site on the county farm in New Paltz for an outdoor show April 26 to 28.

An easement was granted on county property adjacent to county road 113 north of the Rondout Creek, west of the James Street Bridge required for the Rosendale Flood Protection Project. The county will receive a sum of $100 for the permanent easement.

Rhinebeck Bank

Would-Be Burglars Whiff

Three police agencies including the Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, State Police BCI and local authorities today continued investigation of a break in at the First National Bank of Rhinebeck, which was discovered Sunday morning.

Troopers and village police also are investigating a burglary at the Rhinebeck American Legion hall about a block away from the bank.

BCI Investigator D. J. Tudor, who is investigating with the FBI and Rhinebeck police officials, said the would-be bank burglars who got nothing for their efforts, evidently used a piece of 2 x 4 lumber to smash the window in front of the bank.

Tudor said the bank had definitely been entered and the intruders searched through the interior but discovered the night depository and all securities and cash were secured, the money and anything of value had been placed in the vault before the close of business Friday.

The attempted bank burglary occurred sometime between late Saturday night and Sunday morning when the window was discovered broken. The piece of 2 x 4 was found on the sidewalk in front of the building.

Because the bank is a federal institution, the FBI was called in by State Police to investigate the incident.

Investigator Tudor checked the burglary at the American Legion building and learned that a box containing cash donated by members for charity had been stolen. Vending machines in the building were ripped open and an undetermined amount of cash taken by the intruders, believed to have been the same persons who were involved in the attempted burglary at the bank.

Mother Praises Boys for Aid to Son at Ice Rink

A Saugerties mother today commended three boys who came to the aid of her son after he was slashed by a skate in an accident last week at the Saugerties skating pond.

Mrs. Albert Sperl of 83 Livingston Street, Saugerties, told The Freeman today that her son, Gary, 15, suffered injuries to his left hand in an accident. According to Mrs. Sperl, Gary was skating toward another, unidentified boy, when the second boy fell down in front of Gary. Mrs. Sperl said Gary protected his face from the other boy's skates and had his hand severely slashed.

It was then that three other boys came to the assistance of Gary who was reported to be bleeding profusely. "The boys were Carly and William Whitaker and Herbert Lenz, all of Saugerties. Herbert took his shirt off and wrapped it around Gary's hand while the Whitakers stemmed the flow of blood by applying pressure on Gary's arm and wrist.

The three then helped Gary to Dr. Herman Ash's office, a block away. Dr. Ash administered to the boy who returned home that night.

Mrs. Sperl said Gary has lost feeling in his index finger and that his thumb is numb. Speaking of the boys that helped her son, Mrs. Sperl said, "I've seen children in emergencies before and they usually panic. But these boys didn't. Their action, in my opinion, saved Gary's hand."

Mrs. Sperl said she will contact village officials in an effort to have an adult supervisor at the rink.

Gary attends Board of Cooperative Educational Services classes in Kingston. While his injury is healing he will attend half-day sessions at Saugerties High School.

Swedish Prisons Try Family Living Plan

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A revolutionary prison experiment that would allow long-term inmates regular vacations with their families is underway in Sweden.

The new plan by the prison authorities is a follow-up of a first successful experiment last summer when a specially selected group of paragon prisoners were granted a few weeks' mountain holiday with their families. Now, the National Prison Board, headed by director general Torsten Eriksson, has decided to give "unreliable" inmates a chance too.

"We have to experiment to make progress in prison welfare," said Torsten Eriksson, who has 35 years experience in the field.

Eriksson and the Swedish Prison Board during the past year have carried out three experiments termed unique in the world. They were:

One—A "prisoners' university," located at Uppsala north of here, where gifted inmates study and take even highly qualified courses. They are also allowed to go on to their own into Stockholm University.

Two—The "vacation prison" at Haerjedalen, north Sweden, where model inmates from open institutions had a nice three-weeks summer holiday. There was nothing to bar them, but none escaped.

Three—The so-called "family prison" near Uppsala. Long-term inmates are allowed to live in villas, together with their wives during the last part of their terms. Three villas are currently housing inmates who served long sentences in closed institutions. There is hardly any surveillance. The experiment has proved successful so far, spokesmen for the prison authorities said.

Bruce Peller Named Scholarship Winner

The directors of the Student-Aid Foundation at the State University and Technical College at Delhi have announced the awarding of a $300 scholarship to Bruce Peller. The award is for the 1968-69 academic year.

Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Peller of Kingston. After graduation from Kingston High School, he will enroll in the Business Division of the College.

In making the award, the directors noted that the Student-Aid Foundation is a private effort founded in the hope that students be given the "opportunity to become all he is capable of being." The Foundation's scholarship, assistantship and loan programs are financed through the annual gifts of alumni, parents and friends of Delhi Tech. This year the foundation will make awards totaling to at least 10% of the entering freshmen body.

Haernosand prison, convicted against his denial of a cold-blooded robbery-murder about six years ago, moved into a modern three-room villa to spend a delayed honeymoon with his pretty young wife.

The couple married last November during a few hours' extra leave granted the inmate. The prison board's "wedding present" was a promise that he could serve the rest of his term in the probably unique "family prison" situated at Knutsby about 35 miles north of here. The inmate and his wife moved in last month in time for Christmas. It was their first meeting since the wedding.

"They will be allowed to stay in the house until we find that he may be released. His term will certainly be shortened if he behaves, but he will probably have to wait a few years for his release," Torsten Eriksson explained.

The villa, for which the prisoners pay a near nominal rent of a couple of hundred crowns (about $40) a month, is unguarded and casual surveillance is extremely discreet.

While serving his sentence "at home," the convicted robber-murderer pursues his studies on working therapy while moving and working freely in the society and enjoying all the blessings of ordinary home and family life. The inmate, while taking a Bible course in prison, became deeply religious and met his wife at a free church congregation he attended on furloughs.

There are currently only a few such villas in Sweden today but prison authorities plan to extend the system on a large scale providing it works out well.

Work is fundamental to the Swedish prison system and many of the open institutions—now amounting to one fourth of the prisons—function as "factory prisons" on terms similar to any outside plant.

The prison authorities are striving to increase the percentage of open institutions to half of all prison facilities.

Despite all the liberality, Swedish prisoners do escape. The escape rate in 1966 (complete figures for 1967 are still unavailable) was 8.2 per cent. A large number of these escapees, however, were inmates who did not return from furloughs, or returned late.

And what do the Swedish people say about the increasingly "soft deal" some Swedish convicts get? (Others are still put behind maximum-security 20-foot high walls under close guard.)

A random sampling of "man-in-the-street" sentiment indicated a possible majority taking a favorable attitude at least toward allowing inmates more opportunity to see their mates.

A young switchboard operator's comment is typical: "It seems quite natural to me that new thinking in prison welfare leads to new rules that allow increased contacts between inmates and their wives or husbands. It is tragic that the family members should be punished too."

Fillmore Sent Valentine to Mysterious 'Annie'

By ARLEEN ABRAHAM
Was there a secret love in the life of Millard Fillmore, 13th President of the United States?

If not, who was the dear Annie of an 1850 Valentine written in Fillmore's handwriting, and signed with his authenticated signature?

Researchers who have delved into the "secret" loves of other well known figures have puzzled over this Valentine for the past 10 years. But they have still not solved the riddle of the Valentine discovered in 1956 in an antique shop in Norton, Conn.

The mysterious Valentine is an embossed lace design of a shepherdess and lambs in a field. An oval center contains a handpainted rose and two turtle-doves. The message inside has been verified as being in Millard Fillmore's own handwriting. It reads:

"One sends you this who loves you well
"But who he is you cannot tell
"And rest assured no one will prove "More worthy of your constant love."
And additional two lines are written as a postscript:

"Seek not to know from whom it be
"Lest he is not beloved by thee."

Following is a long, drawn line leading to the word "Annie." Below it, a final handwritten line reads: "Yours until we meet dear Annie," along with the signature of Millard Fillmore.

Wasn't it strange to sign a sentiment which indicates that the Valentine was supposed to be anonymous? Historians explain that suitors of the mid-19th century often played tricks on one another, sometimes using fanciful names.

Sometimes they exchanged the same card over a period of years, adding additional messages to one another. It is quite possible, in fact, that Fillmore sent the Valentine in just this fashion to his first wife, Abigail Powers Fillmore.

Tall, scholarly, and musical Abigail Powers Fillmore, a minister's daughter from Monrovia, N.Y., married Millard Fillmore in 1826. A few classes ahead of him in school, (she was two years his senior) she had guided his studies in the little backwoods New York town that was their home.

Fillmore, defeated in a campaign for governor in 1844, won election as state comptroller three years later. Supported by Henry Clay of Kentucky, he had become one of the most prominent Whigs in the party. He subsequently won nomination and election as Zachary Taylor's vice president in 1848. When Taylor, died Fillmore became President.

When Fillmore entered the White House, Mrs. Fillmore's health was poor. She spent much of her time in retirement, studying in the new library at the executive mansion. She died in 1853, leaving a daughter, Mary Abigail, and a son, Millard Powers. Abigail (the daughter), an accomplished linguist and sculptor, performed the social duties at the White House during Fillmore's tenure.

In 1858, Fillmore married for a second time. His bride was Mrs. Caroline Carmichael McIntosh of Albany. Retired from public life and crippled by paralysis, Fillmore died in 1874, perhaps carrying the Valentine secret to his grave.

Korean Pregnant Women Are Better Off Starving

So you're expecting a baby!

If you're irked at the dos and don'ts—particularly in the diet field—that your doctor has prescribed, be glad that you're not a pregnant woman living in one of 26 agricultural communities of South Korea.

According to the Korean Home Economics Association, they believe they must avoid 14 different kinds of food. Here's why:

If a pregnant woman eats duck, her baby may walk like a duck all its life.

If she eats rabbit meat, her baby will probably have a hare-lip.

If she eats fish or poultry, the baby will have rough, scaly skin or chronic gooseflesh in later life.

Soup made with meat bones, especially chicken bones, may cause her baby to be born disfigured.

If she eats soybeans or squash, her teeth may decay so badly that she may lose them all.

Spiced radish, if eaten during pregnancy, forewarns of a difficult childbirth.

A nursing mother must avoid seven different kinds of food, including all green vegetables, especially fresh lettuce.

A weaning baby must not eat any eggs; or he will be a late talker.

Plan Puppet Show

A delightful rendition of "Jack and The Beanstalk" will be presented at the West Hurley school cafeteria on Saturday morning, Mar. 2, at 11 a.m., according to Marge Ring, chairman of the PTA's ways and means committee. ## Two Kingston Girls Named Outstanding Homemakers

Two local girls have been named winners in the 1968 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow contest. They are Miss Holly Seitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seitz, 85 Washington Avenue, a Kingston High School senior; and Miss Catherine Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Tucker, RD 3, this city, a senior at John A. Coleman High School.

Miss Seitz credits seven years of 4-H Club work for her knowledge of homemaking and especially, her 4-H leader, Mrs. Vernon Goetchius of Hurley. In connection with 4-H she has won awards for sewing, cooking, gardening. Last year she received a home improvement award for a project of completely refinishing an antique spool washstand.

Miss Seitz makes many of her own clothes, enjoys cooking and has had her apple crisp demonstration chosen for presentation at the New York New England Apple Institute held in Kingston.

Co-editor of the KHS newspaper, "Dame Rumor," she lists archaeology, history, music and skiing as her hobbies. As a junior she was one of two KHS students to win in the annual Albany Times Union History contest. She is an active member of Mid-Hudson Chapter, New York State Archaeological Association, and student member of Archaeological Institute of America. Next year she will attend State University of New York at Albany where she will major in history, anthropology, museum work and teaching history. She has received a letter of commendation from National Merit Scholarship Program.

Weekends she is employed at Corroll's Hamburgers, Broadway, this city.

Miss Tucker was also a member of the 4-H Club in Hurley, under the direction of Pat McCabe. During the summer of 1966 she studied a Singer sewing course and won second place for a suit project.

Editor of the Coleman School paper, "Coleman Courier," she is a member of the Drama Club, Glee Club and is an avid reader.

She has won a National Merit Letter of Commendation and intends to further her education at either Mt. St. Vincent College, New York, or Mt. Holyoke, Hadley, Mass.

Miss Tucker keeps busy by making most of her clothes and works part time at the New York Telephone Company, Kingston.

Their achievement in a written examination for senior girls has made them eligible for state and national scholarship awards and also has earned them a specially designed silver charm from General Mills, sponsor of the program.

making. Each winner now becomes eligible for scholarships ranging from $500 to $5000.

A state Homemaker of Tomorrow will be selected from high school winners in the state. She will receive a $1500 scholarship with a $500 grant going to the state runner-up. The winner's school will receive a set of Encyclopedia Britannica by Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc.

The Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow from this state, together with those from all other states and the District of Columbia, each accompanied by a school advisor, will join in an expense paid educational tour of Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D.C., next spring.

The national winner, the 1968 All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow, will be announced at a dinner in Minneapolis, Minn., home of General Mills, Inc. She will be chosen from state Homemakers of Tomorrow on the basis of her original test score plus personal observation and interviews during the tour, and her scholarship will be increased to $5000. Second, third, and fourth ranking national winners will have their original scholarship grants increased to $4000, $3000 and $2000, respectively.

This is the 14th year of the Betty Crocker Search, initiated in 1954-55 to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career. Approximately six million senior girls have participated in the Search program since its inception, and 1358 winners will have earned scholarships totaling $1,481,500 at the conclusion of the current program.

The 1968 Search has set a new record for the program.

Avoid Accidents! Kiss Your Wife

LONDON (AP) — Kiss your wife in the morning if you don't want an accident at work.

This was the advice British Parliamentarian Sir Edward Brown gave to a safety conference in London.

Brown claimed that a man who fought with his wife was more likely to be involved in a mishap, because of his frame of mind.

The posters would remind workers of the possible consequences of a breakfast-time row, he explained.

"A quarrel can prey on a man's mind. There comes a moment when his concentration goes, and the result could be a limb trapped in a machine," he said.

Said Brown's wife Rosa: "We have been married for 28 years, and Ted has always made a special point of kissing me before he leaves home. We have never argued during breakfast."

"It stands to reason that if you have a row, you will get a bit irritable and it could stop your concentrating on safety."

Dana F. Otis Studies Forestry

Dana F. Otis, a senior at New Paltz Central High School, has been accepted for admission to West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, W. Va.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Otis of 130 Huguenot Street, New Paltz, N. Y., plans to make forestry his major study.

Otis was named the football king this past season and has won five varsity letters through his participation in sports. He is also a member of the band, chorus and the Chef Club.

Otis is an officer of the band and last year was the junior prom king.

Honors he has received include election to the Ulster County Band and the New York State Music Association and selection to participate in the choral clinic.

He is an acolyte at the St. Andrews Episcopal Church.

Two Kingston Girls Named Outstanding Homemakers

Two local girls have been named winners in the 1968 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow contest. They are Miss Holly Seitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seitz, 85 Washington Avenue, a Kingston High School senior; and Miss Catherine Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Tucker, RD 3, this city, a senior at John A. Coleman High School.

Miss Seitz credits seven years of 4-H Club work for her knowledge of homemaking and especially, her 4-H leader, Mrs. Vernon Goethius of Hurley. In connection with 4-H she has won awards for sewing, cooking, gardening. Last year she received a home improvement award for a project of completely refinishing an antique spool washstand.

Co-editor of the KHS newspaper, "Dame Rumor," she lists archaeology, history, music and skiing as her hobbies. As a junior she was one of two KHS students to win in the annual Albany Times Union History contest. She is an active member of Mid-Hudson Chapter, New York State Archaeological Association, and student member of Archaeological Institute of America. Next year she will attend State University of New York at Albany where she will major in history, anthropology, museum work and teaching history. She has received a letter of commendation from National Merit Scholarship Program.

Weekends she is employed at Corroll's Hamburgers, Broadway, this city.

Miss Tucker was also a member of the 4-H Club in Hurley, under the direction of Pat McCabe. During the summer of 1966 she studied a Singer sewing course and won second place for a suit project.

Editor of the Coleman School paper, "Coleman Courier," she is a member of the Drama Club, Glee Club and is an avid reader.

She has won a National Merit Letter of Commendation and intends to further her education at either Mt. St. Vincent College, New York, or Mt. Holyoke, Hadley, Mass.

Miss Tucker keeps busy by making most of her clothes and works part time at the New York Telephone Company, Kingston.

Their achievement in a written examination for senior girls has made them eligible for state and national scholarship awards and also has earned them a specially designed silver charm from General Mills, sponsor of the program.

The winners were among 603,798 girls in 15,079 high schools who registered for the 1968 knowledge and attitude examination dealing with homemaking. Each winner now becomes eligible for scholarships ranging from $500 to $5000.

A state Homemaker of Tomorrow will be selected from high school winners in the state. She will receive a $1500 scholarship with a $500 grant going to the state runner-up. The winner's school will receive a set of Encyclopedia Britannica by Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc.

The Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow from this state, together with those from all other states and the District of Columbia, each accompanied by a school advisor, will join in an expense paid educational tour of Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and Washington, D.C., next spring.

The national winner, the 1968 All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow, will be announced at a dinner in Minneapolis, Minn., home of General Mills, Inc. She will be chosen from state Homemakers of Tomorrow on the basis of her original test score plus personal observation and interviews during the tour, and her scholarship will be increased to $5000. Second, third, and fourth ranking national winners will have their original scholarship grants increased to $4000, $3000 and $2000, respectively.

This is the 14th year of the Betty Crocker Search, initiated in 1954-55 to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career. Approximately six million senior girls have participated in the Search program since its inception, and 1358 winners will have earned scholarships totaling $1,481,500 at the conclusion of the current program.

The 1968 Search has set a new record for the program.

Avoid Accidents! Kiss Your Wife

LONDON (AP) — Kiss your wife in the morning if you don't want an accident at work.

This was the advice British Parliamentarian Sir Edward Brown gave to a safety conference in London.

Brown claimed that a man who fought with his wife was more likely to be involved in a mishap, because of his frame of mind.

Brown, Conservative Party M.P. for Bath, told the conference that factories should display posters of a man kissing his wife before leaving for work.

The posters would remind workers of the possible consequences of a breakfast-time row, he explained.

"A quarrel can prey on a man's mind. There comes a moment when his concentration goes, and the result could be a limb trapped in a machine," he said.

Said Brown's wife Rosa: "We have been married for 28 years, and Ted has always made a special point of kissing me before he leaves home. We have never argued during breakfast."

"It stands to reason that if you have a row, you will get a bit irritable and it could stop your concentrating on safety."

Uhl and Hanna Pace UCCC's 122-95 Rout of Aggies

Jumpin' Joe Uhl and Leon Hanna combined to furnish a devastating one-two punch as Ulster County Community College demolished a tough, aggressive Long Island Aggies quintet, 122-95, for its 20th victory of the season Saturday night at the municipal auditorium.

Uhl again came tantalizingly close to his school record of 47 points with 45 with a brilliant 55 per cent (20/36) from the field and 5 for 5 at the free throw line.

Hanna, continuing his superb all round play, was a spectacular 70 per cent from the field (10/14) for 27 points, a career high. He was 7 for 8 from the foul line, led the Senators with 13 rebounds and wrecked the Aggies with his devastating work under the boards in the tough early going.

Has Nine Assists

Uhl had nine assists, hitting Hanna several times, as the former KHS star baffled the Long Island defenders with layups off either hand on the receiving end of Uhl's bullet like assists. The Aggies were utterly helpless against this maneuver.

Probably the strongest team physically Ulster has faced this season, Long Island severely challenged UCCC in the first nine minutes, leading 21-17 after trailing 7-2 at the start. But in the end it was UCCC's relentless zone press that prevailed. A Uhl layup and Chando steal sent Ulster ahead 37-38 with 9:45 elapsed in first half and that was the turning point. The UCCC lead ran as high as 30 points and Coach Mike Perry flooded the floor with subs in the last five minutes.

The Ulster coach had a lot of respect for the 12-4 Aggies, however. "They were the strongest, most aggressive team we faced this year," he said. "They moved us around in the early part but our press finally wore them down. They probably hadn't been pressed that hard all season."

Hurley Scores 26

Jim Hurley, the Long Island ace is second to Uhl in Region XV scoring with a 27-point average fell just one point shy of that mark. Tony Zilliox, a burly 6-2, 205 pound forward had 22 for the Aggies and was their best rebounder.

Uhl hit 20 points and Hanna added 16 to UCCC's 58-45 half-time bulge and the relentless Senator pressure forced the visitors into numerous turnovers and errors in the second half. Hanna's shooting and domination of the boards, Uhl's sharpshooting and a strong second half by Frank Roselli turned the game into a rout.

UCCC raced to a 7-2 lead from the opening tapoff but fell behind 21-17. An 8-point spurt by Roselli, Uhl and Hanna (4) sent Ulster ahead 29-22. Two Uhl shots, a pair of Hanna free throws and Chando's steal changed the course of the game permanently.

Zilliox Bows Out

With 15:30 left in the game, UCCC led 79-54 and Uhl had accumulated 33 points. Bill Zilliox bowed out on 5 personal at 14:30.

Uhl blew a chipie at 8:00 but followed Roselli's tip-in for UCCC's 100th point to boost his total to 41 with 7:30 left to play. But the big Senator in- explicitly failed to score in the next four minutes.

With 3:00 left, Uhl converted four successive free throws on two plays to run his string to 45 points and at the 2:40 mark, Coach Perry waved him to the bench amid thunderous applause from both cheering sections.

Ulster has a team percentage of 51 on 49 goals in 106 attempts and was 24/31 from the foul line. The Aggies were 38/50 from the field; 19/25 at the foul line.

UCCC hosts Dutchess CCC Wednesday at the auditorium in its next game.

Senators Hold Line In Regional Ratings

Ulster County Community College led the nation's junior college basketball teams in scoring with a game average of 118.2 points as of Feb. 8, but have slipped below that figure since the last NJCAA release out of Dodge City, Kansas.

Ulster paced St. Clair JC of Port Huron, Michigan, by a slightly more than a point. Meanwhile, Joe Uhl was eighth individual scoring with a 32.2 average.

Ron Riordan of Becker Junior College at Worcester, Mass., continues to lead individual scoring with a 45.9 average in 19 games.

In the Mid-Hudson Conference, however, UCCC and Uhl are off by themselves. Unbeaten Ulster (6-0) looks like a shoe in for the conference crown, while Uhl holds a steady 32.7 game average, seven points better than runnerup Ron Moberly of Rockland.

Red Hook Rebounds To Rout Rhinebeck

Red Hook, one of the area's strongest teams, fell behind, 7-2 to home standing Rhinebeck in the opening minutes of their game Friday night, but the Hookers moved into a pressing defense and rolled to an impressive 105-50 win.

Alternating between a full and half-court press, the Hookers wiped out the Rhinebeck lead and went out front, 24-16 in the first period.

With the press still in force, Red Hook doubled Rhinebeck's second-quarter output, outshooting Rhinebeck, 26-13.

The taller Hookers completely dominated the backboards, holding an 84-30 bulge. The scoring domination extended into the third period when the press proved most effective. Red Hook canned 27 points while holding Rhinebeck to just three.

Red Hook had six men register double figures, with Don Keefe gaining high honors with 17. He was followed by Jim Byron's 12, Ed Thompson with 11, Terry White (14), Stan Jacoby's 11 and Ralph Cort, who chipped in 10.

Red Hook made it a sweep, capturing the jayvee game, but having to go down to the wire to take a 53-48 win. Ahead by one, Red Hook canned four foul shots in the final 20 seconds to build up the final margin.

LA Murders Celts In Boston, 141-104

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers were red hot, but the Boston Celtics would rather forget about it.

Boston veteran John Havlicek summed up the general feeling of the Celtics in a few words Sunday after he and his mates suffered their worst beating of the season in a 141-104 clobbering by the Lakers.

"The best part of the day is ahead of us," Havlicek said without a trace of a smile as he left the dressing room.

The Lakers, bidding to overtake San Francisco for second place in the National Basketball Association's Western Division, came to play. The Celtics were as cold as the 10-degree weather outside the Garden.

The Celtics, accustomed to cheers in winning eight straight NBA titles before being dethroned by Philadelphia last year, were jeered by many in a matinee crowd of 9,001. And they didn't win any new fans watching on national television. It's where Philadelphia, which bombed St. Louis 119-93, Seattle 146-118 and San Francisco 146-118 and Baltimore topped San Diego 136-16.

On Saturday, New York beat Philadelphia 115-97, St. Louis edged Chicago 108-107, Baltimore took Detroit 114-109 and Cincinnati nudged San Diego 101-99.

In the ABA Sunday, Minnesota outlasted Dallas 121-119 in double overtime, New Orleans beat Denver 98-90, Kentucky took Indianapolis 103-90, and Houston topped Oakland 127-117. The Lakers, ahead 70-40 at halftime, cashed 53 of 95 floor attempts for 55.8 per cent en route to their seventh victory in eight games and their 12th in their last 15 starts.

Gus Johnson's 44 points, the most of his career, led Baltimore to its third victory in a row. Kevin Loughery had 29 points for the Bullets. Johnson had 24 of his points in the first period.

Walt Hazzard scored 16 points in the third quarter to lead Seattle to its resounding triumph. The victory moved the SuperSonics into a tie for fourth place in the Eastern Division with Chicago.

Haviland and Larry McGoldrick, both in Coach Doug Shepherd's starting lineup for the first time, came through with a great deal of help for the undermanned Hawks, but it was Haviland's 15-foot jump shot with 25 seconds left that gave the Hawks a narrow 47-46 SUNYAC win over Fredonia.

In an earlier game, Orange County's Mike Cusato and Charlie Chambers combined for 19 second-half points as the Colts downed the Hawk Frosh, 79-57. Fredonia moved out in front early, 24-20, with only 14 minutes gone, but then went into a freeze allowing neither team to score, and the 24-20 reading stood up as the halftime score.

The Hawks then took command, with McGoldrick, Haviland and Ed Shuster getting hot.

McGoldrick hit for eight points, Haviland six and Shuster seven in the second half. Pete Kane, who only got five, scored at just the right time, tossing in a layup with two-and-a-half to go, putting the Hawks on top, 45-44.

Fredonia regained the lead on Art Damann's shot with 50 seconds left, 46-45, and the Hawks had their backs to the wall.

New Paltz brought the ball down, worked it a little, and with 25 seconds remaining, Haviland let fly with his jumper from above the foul line.

Haviland's shot swished through the net, but that still left 25 seconds in which Fredonia could score.

Fredonia tried, as Damann fired one up, but missed, with the rebound going out of bounds off a Hawk player.

Fredonia took it in-bounds again, and Tony Scaglione took a shot with one-second showing on the clock, only to have it bounce off the rim.

The win marked the Hawks fifth in 14 outings and upped their SUNYAC chart to 2-4.

In the earlier contest, Cusato and Chambers, the Colts two top scorers, had their first-half troubles, and the Orangemen trailed as late as 14-minutes into the first half.

A spurt put them on top, 33-27 at halftime, and then Chambers and Cusato broke loose, with Chambers getting 10, mostly on foul shots, and Cusato nine as the Colts ran away from the Hawks.

The Hawks only double figure scorer was Oscar Kvelland with 12. It was the Hawks 10th loss in 11 contests.

Killy Wins Second Gold Medal in Giant Slalom

By MORRIS ROSENBERG
Associated Press Writer

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Jean-Claude Killy, France's magnificent ski master, took another giant stride today toward a gold medal sweep of the three men's Alpine races at the Winter Olympic Games, winning the giant slalom with disarming ease.

Killy, the 24-year-old innkeeper's son who flashed to victory in the downhill last Friday and set a blistering pace Sunday in the first of the two giant slalom runs, beat Willy Favre of Switzerland by a decisive margin of 2.22 seconds—although American ace Billy Kidd posted the fastest time in today's climatic race.

Killy will shoot for the Alpine triple — a feat accomplished only once before in Olympic history—Friday and Saturday in the special slalom.

"I hit it as hard as I could," the dashing Frenchman said after his final run of one minute, 46.54 seconds locked up the giant slalom title. "I will try just as hard in the special slalom. I know it won't be easy, but I'll give it everything I have."

Johanna Schut gave the Netherlands its second gold medal in women's speed skating, zipping to a record victory in the 3,000-meter race. Three American girls drew a medal blank, but 29-year-old Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, N.Y., who finished 10th, was one of 10 speedsters who cracked the old Olympic mark held by Russia's Lidiya Skoboleva.

Williams Places 45th in Biathlon

Lt. Edward (Gus) Williams of Williams Lake placed 45th in a field of 60 in the Olympic Biathlon today in France.

In the day's other early final, the biathlon—which combines cross-country skiing with rifle marksmanship—Norwegian policeman Magnar Solberg outpointed two Russians for the gold medal. The four-man U.S. team finished far back in the field of 60.

Killy, whose first giant slalom dash of 1:42.72 gave him a lead of more than one second over Favre going into the finale, clinched his second gold medal with the second fastest run of the day.

Misses Top Three

Kidd, of Stowe, Vt., blazed down the 1,800-meter, 70-gate course in 1:46.46, but failed to crack the top three. Seventh after Friday's run, he climbed to fifth, behind Favre, Heinrich Messner of Austria and Guy Perillat of France.

"No medals today, but we still have another chance," said Kidd, who has bounced back from an ankle injury last week that contributed to his 18th place windup in the downhill.

Kidd and teammate Jimmy Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif., who took the silver and bronze medals in the slalom competition at Innsbruck, Austria, four years ago, will again challenge the powerful, Killy-led French squad, the Austrians and the

Heuga, who went into the giant slalom final one place behind Kidd, fell back to the 10th spot with a 1:48.43 clocking today.

"I just didn't race as well as I like," he said. "The course didn't bother me. It was soft, but I didn't mind. I'm only disappointed with myself."

Killy finished with combined time of three minutes, 29.28 seconds. Favre had a total of 3:31.50 after his second run of 1:47.56. Messner vaulted past Perillat, who was third Sunday, with a 1:46.67 clocking today and a total of 3:31.83.

Seeks Sailer Mark

Killy hopes to match the triple gold medal coup of Austria's Toni Sailer in the 1956 Games, but the French skier isn't making any predictions about his chances in the slalom. "That's really too difficult to say. There are many

Army Skein Alive

Coach Bobby Knight's Army basketball team almost had its 10-game win streak snapped Saturday night, but the Cadets, with two substitutes hitting in the final minutes, pulled out their 11th straight, a narrow 55-54 win over St. John's.

The Cadets were without their two big guns, Steve Hunt and Bill Schutsky, for most of the first half as Hunt reinjured an ankle (it kept him out of the last contest), and Schutsky was in foul trouble.

As a result, the Cadets found themselves deep in the hole, 32-20, at halftime.

With the two back in the lineup, Army cut the lead to three, 32-29, but then St. John's came back, hiking the lead back to 11, 46-35.

Schutsky then broke loose, canning 10 points as Army outscored the Redmen, 16-4, over a span of seven minutes, and with 4:20 left, a pair of fouls by Schutsky put the Black Knights of the Hudson on top for the first time, 51-50.

The subs, Mike Krzyzewski (for Schutsky) and Jim Oxley (for Hunt) hit on back-to-back baskets and the Cadets went up, 55-52, with 1:42 left.

St. John's scored within five seconds, and forced a turnover, giving them the ball with 1:32 remaining. They stalled, trying to score in a do-or-die effort.

They got two, but both were off target. Rudy Bogard's try with 26 left was wide, but St. John's controlled. A Bob Jackson shot at the buzzer was off:

LA Murders Celts In Boston, 141-104

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers were red hot, but the Boston Celtics would rather forget about it.

Boston veteran John Havlicek summed up the general feeling of the Celtics in a few words Sunday after he and his mates suffered their worst beating of the season in a 141-104 clobbering by the Lakers.

"The best part of the day is ahead of us," Havlicek said without a trace of a smile as he left the dressing room.

The Lakers, bidding to overtake San Francisco for second place in the National Basketball Association's Western Division, came to play. The Celtics were as cold as the 10-degree weather outside the Garden.

The Celtics, accustomed to cheers in winning eight straight NBA titles before being dethroned by Philadelphia last year, were jered by many in a matinee crowd of 9,001. And they didn't win any new fans watching on national television.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia bombed St. Louis 119-93, Seattle crushed San Francisco 146-118 and Baltimore topped San Diego 136-16.

Killy Wins Second Gold Medal in Giant Slalom

By MORRIS ROSENBERG
Associated Press Writer

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Jean-Claude Killy, France's magnificent ski master, took another giant stride today toward a gold medal sweep of the three men's Alpine races at the Winter Olympic Games, winning the giant slalom with disarming ease.

Killy, the 24-year-old innkeeper's son who flashed to victory in the downhill last Friday and set a blistering pace Sunday in the first of the two giant slalom runs, beat Willy Favre of Switzerland by a decisive margin of 2.22 seconds—although American ace Billy Kidd posted the fastest time in today's climatic race.

Killy will shoot for the Alpine triple — a feat accomplished only once before in Olympic history—Friday and Saturday in the special slalom.

"I hit it as hard as I could," the dashing Frenchman said after his final run of one minute, 46.54 seconds locked up the giant slalom title. "I will try just as hard in the special slalom. I know it won't be easy, but I'll give it everything I have."

Johanna Schut gave the Netherlands its second gold medal in women's speed skating, zipping to a record victory in the 3,000-meter race. Three American girls drew a medal blank, but 29-year-old Jeanne Ashworth of Wilmington, N.Y., who finished 10th, was one of 10 speedsters who cracked the old Olympic mark held by Russia's Lidiya Skobolekova.

Williams Places 45th in Biathlon

Lt. Edward (Gus) Williams of Williams Lake placed 45th in a field of 60 in the Olympic Biathlon today in France.

In the day's other early final, the biathlon—which combines cross-country skiing with rifle marksmanship—Norwegian policeman Magnar Solberg outpointed two Russians for the gold medal. The four-man U.S. team finished far back in the field of 60.

Killy, whose first giant slalom dash of 1:42.72 gave him a lead of more than one second over Favre going into the finale, clinched his second gold medal with the second fastest run of the day.

Misses Top Three
Kidd, of Stowe, Vt., blazed down the 1,800-meter, 70-gate course in 1:46.46, but failed to crack the top three. Seventh after Friday's run, he climbed to fifth, behind Favre, Heinrich Messner of Austria and Guy Perillat of France.

"No medals today, but we still have another chance," said Kidd, who has bounced back from an ankle injury last week that contributed to his 18th place finish in the downhill.

Kidd and teammate Jimmy Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif., who took the silver and bronze medals in the slalom competition at Innsbruck, Austria, four years ago, will again challenge the powerful, Killy-led French squad, the Austrians and the Swiss in the last of the big three Alpine events.

Heuga, who went into the giant slalom final one place behind Kidd, fell back to the 10th spot with a 1:48.43 clocking today. "I just didn't race as well as I like," he said. "The course didn't bother me. It was soft, but I didn't mind. I'm only disappointed with myself."

Killy finished with combined time of three minutes, 29.28 seconds. Favre had a total of 3:31.50 after his second run of 1:47.56. Messner vaulted past Perillat, who was third Sunday, with a 1:46.67 clocking today and a total of 3:31.83.

hurdles to cross — qualification races and two heats for classification," he said. "Anyway, I run each race for itself without thinking of the others."

Kidd's combined time was 3:32.37 and Heuga had a total of 3:33.89.

Spider Sabich of Kyburz, Calif., and Rick Chafee of Rutland, Vt., wound up 14th and 15th, respectively, completing a highly respectable showing for the underdog U.S. contingent.

In the final of four women's speed skating tests, Dutch girls finished 1-3, with Miss Schut setting an Olympic mark of 4:56.2 close to 18 seconds under the record set by Miss Skobolekova eight years ago at Squaw Valley—and Stien Kaiser, holder of the pending world 3,000-meter standard of 4:54.6, flying home just behind Finland's Kaija Mustonen.

The best the U.S. could do in the biathlon was a 27th place finish by Ralph Makely, an Army corporal from Murray, Utah. Three other Army men, Capt. William Spencer of Fort Richardson, Alaska, Lt. Edward Williams of Rosendale, N.Y., and PFC Jonathan Chaffee of Lynne, N.H., were 37th, 45th and 49th in the field of 60.

Warm weather and rain again played havoc with the bobsled and luge schedule. Singles luge (small sled) races set for this morning and tonight were postponed, as was tonight's first training session for the four-man bobsled event.

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — A resident of this Olympic city stopped at the tourist information office today to ask when the opening ceremony would take place — almost a week after the opening of the Olympic Games.

Army Upsets Lehigh on Mats

Army's wrestling team took five of the final seven events, with the other two resulting in draws, allowing the Cadets to post their first win over Lehigh in 15-years, knocking off the always-high ranked Engineers, 21-13.

Lehigh took the first three weights, but Army came on strong. Bill Dinger's pin at 167-pounds put the Cadets up, 13-11. They were never headed again.

The clincher came at 191 as Joe Ferraro won by decision, giving Army at least a tie as they led, 18-13. It was put away when heavyweight Paul Ragland took a decision.

Over the 15-year span, the best Army could do was gain a tie.

It was the Cadets fifth win in a row after dropping their opener.

Wappingers Win Sixth DCSL Mat Title

By CHRIS GEHMAN
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Wappingers Falls High's brilliant wrestling team racked up a team score of 110 points to capture its sixth straight Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL) wrestling crown Saturday at Saugerties High gym.

The Fallmen finished 40 points ahead of runnerup Arlington which had 70. Others in order were: Saugerties 67, Oakwood 38, Beacon 32, Roosevelt 23, Cardinal Farley 15 and Pine Plains 15.

As in previous years, Wappingers dominated both the seedings and the eventual winners. They had seven men ranked No. 1 in the seedings and eight men come through to be individual champions.

The afternoon wrestle-offs were held on two mats in the loosely filled Saugerties High gymnasium. Spectators were mostly parents and high school students, and there was hardly any organized cheering or applause.

A team would break out with the "Pin! Pin! Pin!" roar to demoralize their man's opponent every once in a while, but that was about it as far as organized yelling was concerned. Attention was divided between the two mats.

Davis Beats Myer
At one point in the afternoon did all eyes turn to one mat. Frank Myer of Saugerties was wrestling Phil Davis of Oakwood. Davis, an excellent wrestler, voted Outstanding Wrestler of the tournament by the coaches won the match 6-1, but the applause at the end was more for his opponent. Frank Myer is totally blind. Saugerties coach Larry Dake said "the boy is a real inspiration to our whole team."

Saugerties grapplers drew four byes into the second round, a factor which hurt them in the total point standings, as no points are awarded for a bye. Rich Bolen, 183 pound class, was the only individual winner for the Saugerties squad.

A crowd of about 600 people was on hand for the finals Saturday night to watch eight Wappingers wrestlers win their weight classes, beginning with William Ciccarelli in the 98 pound class. William Conley, Craig McElveen, Vince Minasi, Don Locke, Fred David, William Grahame, and Nick Zuzolo were the other winners for Wappingers.

Wins in Squeaker
Zuzolo decided Rich Praetorius 1-0 in the 168 pound contest that was a real highlight of the evening's wrestling. Each had won once in previous matches this year, and were evenly matched. With both wrestlers extremely cautious, Zuzolo's sole point came on a

David Vail, of Arlington High, who finished second behind David of Wappingers, in the 148 pound class, was awarded the trophy for the quickest pin of the match, with a two-pin average of one minute and 49 seconds.

Phil Courtois and Hugh Knickerbocker were the individual champions for Arlington, winning the 130 pound and heavyweight classes, respectively.

Phil Davis was Oakwood's champion in the 141 pound class.

Light Slate Ahead For School Cagers

The scholastic basketball scene for Tuesday night is comparatively light, with most teams taking the night off to rest for the final weeks of the season, the time when the big push for the individual league pennant races will be on.

There are 11 games on tap however, with eight of them non-league encounters. The three league contests will have little, if any, hearing on the league races, and the standings should remain pretty much intact.

Heading the list of non-league contests is a clash between homecoming Beacon of the DCSL and Kingston, the DUSO League's leader.

Kingston, 7-0 in league play and 13-11 overall, is probably the strongest, most balanced club in the Hudson Valley area.

With four starters capable of hitting double figures each and every game, the Maroon pose a formidable foe for the Bulldogs, who are tied for second with Poughkeepsie in the DCSL. Beacon's league mark is 9-3.

The Maroon buried league opponent Middletown last Friday, taking an early 30-11 lead enroute to a sparkling 99-54 romp over the Middies.

Beacon, rolling along behind league leader Arlington, used a press to good advantage, taking an 8-67 win over Saugerties in its latest outing.

Beacon has some outstanding shooters also, the most well-known is Nate Milligan, a top-notch shooter who went past the 1,000-career point mark against Saugerties.

The Ganders are lead by Gordy Taylor, the UCAL's leading scorer. Joining Taylor in the shooting parade have been Pete Koola, and a pair of rapidly improving performers, Paul Lesser and Frank Samms.

The Sawyers have a pretty good shooter in Roger Praetorius, who is averaging near the 20-point mark in DCSL action.

The DCSL has one league game scheduled, pitting fifth place Lourdes against winless cellar-dweller Farley.

The two other league games involve the DUSO and DUSO Village Leagues.

Fallsburgh meets Port Jervis at Port in the village contest and Liberty goes against host Newburgh in the DUSO game.

The village contest is between also-rans, while Newburgh can pick up a half-game on Kingston with a win. The Goldbacks are now two-back of Kingston.

The remaining non-league clashes find Highland at Millbrook, Poughkeepsie at Peekskill, New Paltz at Burke, Coleman JV's against Roosevelt's jayvees, Middletown at Valley Central and Monroe-Woodbury at Ellenville.

Most are repeats of earlier season meetings, and are set to take place in the running for

Teaming with Milligan is

Jerry Tucker, who kept the

ing quarter.

The Maroon will have to come up with something special to stop Milligan, or their chances of winning will diminish greatly.

Although the Maroon will rate the favorite's role, based

and tenacious press, the key to victory will be stopping Mil-

Beacon's latest victim, the Ganders, are also involved in a non-league game as they travel to Stone Ridge to meet

Rondout Valley, the hottest team in the UCAL.

Saugerties has had its trouble against the press, and can

the loop.

The Rondout offense has been spotty, and coach John (Chick)

Meehan has had to reluctantly

INVESTOR FORUM

EASIER MONEY?

by Harry C. France

The enormous demands for money in 1967 caused a rapid increase in interest rates. Many leading corporations floated security issues, paying dearly for their funds.

As a result, high-grade preferred stock and bond prices sank to low levels and, as I repeatedly pointed out in this column last year, there were bargains galore.

The very high-grade General Motors $5 preferred sold as low as 83 a share last year. The $5 preferred of Consolidated Edison hit a low of 75 1/2 and the $4.50 preferred of Du Pont 75 1/2 also. It is not often that such securities can be bought with high yields.

In 1967, about $16 billion was raised by corporations to meet the needs of growth and expansion. Part of this financing was hurried because of the desire of executives, anticipating even higher interest rates, to beat the interest acceleration.

If, as I believe, interest rates hit their four-decade peak in 1967, high-grade bonds and preferred stocks will move higher in price this year.

This situation has already developed. Du Pont $4.50 preferred had advanced from 75 1/2 to 80 1/2; Consolidated Edison $5 preferred from 75 1/2 to 83; and General Motors $5 preferred from 83 to 92.

U.S. government obligations are up considerably in price. Now, the important question to conservative investors who demand safety and good income is this: will money ease more in 1968 and, hence, will bond and preferred stock prices advance?

The answer is an uncertain yes. An important barometer to watch centers about the decisions of the powerful Federal Reserve Board. This is probably the most influential group in the entire world when basic interest rates are set. Think of the assets they indirectly control.

There are about 6,000 banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System. Their demand and time deposits total more than $240 billion. These

Dear Abby

Some Words of Wisdom

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(1968 by Chicago Tribune)
DEAR ABBY: Our eldest daughter had to get married at 17, after having gone steady with a "very nice" boy for three years, so we made a rule for the younger children—NO GOING STEADY.

Now we are having trouble with our 16-year-old daughter. She wants to go steady. We said no, she has to have a date with another boy between dates with her special boy friend. She says no one else asks her.

Tell me, Abby, how can parents keep their children from going steady? We know from past experience that it is dangerous, and we don't want any more "hurry-up" marriages in our family. But if the kids don't want to go with anyone else, or if no one else asks them, what can parents do?
WORRIED MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Instead of making rules, if parents would do yourself (and your pooch) a work toward building the kind of relationship with their children that lends itself to straight talk on a sensible, unemotional basis, they would fare better.

Let your children know why too much togetherness puts a strain on two normal young people who have a strong physical attraction for each other. Let them know that this "attraction" is usually equated with "love"—but don't laugh and say it's only "puppy love." Tell them that the only way to reduce temptation is to reduce the time spent together alone.

Tell them that you are aware that when young people think they are "in love," the more difficult it is to control their desires, and they seldom do less when they're together than they did last time. Let them know that you understand and trust them, and recommend not going steady because you want to help them, not punish them. And then, Mother, you will have less to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem very important to you, but our dog snores. Even though she sleeps in the kitchen, we can still hear him. It is too cold to put him outside, but he is interfering with my sleep. Any suggestions?
UP NIGHTS IN BOONE, IA.

DEAR UP: Dogs, like people, can have a nasal obstruction which causes them to snore, so do yourself (and your pooch) a work toward building the kind of relationship with their children that lends itself to straight talk on a sensible, unemotional basis, they would fare better.

If this doesn't help, try ear plugs (for you), but I wouldn't put a dog out in an Iowa winter.

DEAR ABBY: My heart goes out to that young woman who said she was the world's worst housekeeper. I was once in her shoes, but now I am one of the best. I think I know what the problem is for most women: They never finish what they start.

Before they're done cleaning, they start ironing. Before they start ironing, they start to bake. Then, instead of washing up those dishes, they start sewing, and before they finish with that, they go marketing and come home with a lot of stuff to put away, which only adds to the confusion.

If woman would tackle only one job at a time, and finish that job and everything connected with it, they would soon find that housekeeping is not a chore—but a joy.

It is so nice to live in a home that is always in good order.

Daniel Webster was the guest at dinner of a solicitous hostess who insisted rather annoyingly that he was eating nothing at all, that he had no appetite, that he was not making out a meal.

Finally Webster wearied of her hospitable chatter, and addressed her in his most ponderous senatorial manner:

Daniel Webster: Madam, permit me to assure you that I sometimes eat more than at other times, but never less.

A sailor who limped into the naval hospital had his foot X-rayed and was asked to wait for the results. Some time later an orderly appeared and handed the sailor a large pill.

Just then a mother with a small child in need of immediate attention entered. After the orderly disappeared with the new patient, the sailor hobbled over to get a glass of water, swallowed the pill, and sat down to wait.

Some time later the orderly reappeared carrying a bucket of water.

"OK," he said, "let's drop the pill in this bucket and soak the foot."

Some Words of Wisdom

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1968 by Chicago Tribune
DEAR ABBY: Our eldest daughter had to get married at 17, after having gone steady with a "very nice" boy for three years, so we made a rule for the younger children—NO GOING STEADY.

Now we are having trouble with our 16-year-old daughter. She wants to go steady. We said no, she has to have a date with another boy between dates with her special boy friend. She says no one else asks her. Tell me, Abby, how can parents keep their children from going steady? We know from past experience that it is dangerous, and we don't want any more "hurry-up" marriages in our family. But if the kids don't want to go with anyone else, or if no one else asks them, what can parents do?

WORRIED MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Instead of making rules, if parents would work toward building the kind of relationship with their children that lends itself to straight talk on a sensible, unemotional basis, they would fare better.

Let your children know why too much togetherness puts a strain on two normal young people who have a strong physical attraction for each other. Let them know that this "attraction" is usually equated with "love"—but don't laugh and say it's only "puppy love." Tell them that the only way to reduce temptation is to reduce the time spent together alone.

Tell them that you are aware that when young people think they are "in love," the more they make out, the more difficult it is to control their desires, and they seldom do less when they're together than they did last time. Let them know that you understand and trust them, and recommend not going steady because you want to help them, not punish them. And then, Mother, you will have less to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem very important to you, but our dog snores. Even though he sleeps in the kitchen, we can still hear him. It is too cold to put him outside, but he is interfering with my sleep. Any suggestions?

UP NIGHTS IN BOONE, IA.
DEAR UP: Dogs, like people, can have a nasal obstruction which causes them to snore, so do yourself (and your pooch) a favor and ask your vet to look into it.

If this doesn't help, try ear plugs (for you), but I wouldn't put a dog out in an Iowa winter.

DEAR ABBY: My heart goes out to that young woman who said she was the world's worst housekeeper. I was once in her shoes, but now I am one of the best. I think I know what the problem is for most women: They never finish what they start.

Before they're done cleaning, they start ironing. Before they're thru ironing, they start to bake. Then, instead of washing up those dishes, they start sewing, and before they finish with that, they go marketing and come home with a lot of stuff to put away, which only adds to the confusion.

If woman would tackle only one job at a time, and finish that job and everything connected with it, they would soon find that housekeeping is not a chore—but a joy.

It is so nice to live in a home that is always in good order.

Daniel Webster was the guest at dinner of a solicitous hostess who insisted rather annoyingly that he was eating nothing at all, that he had no appetite, that he was not making out a meal. Finally Webster, wearied of her hospitable chatter, and addressed her in his most ponderous senatorial manner:

Daniel Webster — Madam, permit me to assure you that I sometimes eat more than at other times, but never less.

A sailor who limped into the naval hospital had his foot X-rayed and was asked to wait for the results. Some time later an orderly appeared and handed the sailor a large pill.

Just then a mother with a small child in need of immediate attention entered. After the orderly disappeared with the new patient, the sailor hobbled over to get a glass of water, swallowed the pill, and sat down to wait.

Some time later the orderly reappeared carrying a bucket of water. "OK," he said, "let's drop the pill in this bucket and soak the foot."

'Libel' Satisfying Two Hours

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It is difficult to find an entertainment form that holds interest better and is as well adapted to television's needs as a courtroom drama. And ABC's two-hour adaptation of Henry Denker's Broadway play "A Case of Libel" on Sunday night was a dandy example.

Outstanding Performance

In addition to a tight script that built to a tense climax, there were some outstanding performances, particularly by Van Heflin in the role of plaintiff's attorney who played in the 1963 stage production. The drama, based on "My Life in Court," the memoirs of attorney Louis Nizer, was the story of a libel suit brought by a magazine writer and reporter called Dennis Corcoran, against a nationally published columnist and television commentator named Boyc Bendix.

Bendix, in print and on the air, had attacked Corcoran's courage and morals, apparently in reprisal for Corcoran's favorable review of a book that had been highly critical of the columnist.

Lloyd Bridges played Corcoran as an angry, determined man anxious to clear his name. Jose Ferrer, as Bendix, gave the character arrogance, incredible righteousness and just a suggestion of eccentricity that made the explosion toward the end logical.

Angie Dickinson, as Corcoran's wife, had little to do except look worried and act affectionate. The best casting was the choice of the two lawyers. Heflin's opponent was E. G. Marshall, a veteran of the theatrical courtroom. But in his style, attitude—and mustache—he was completely different in the unappetizing role from the role he played for years in "The Defenders."

It was a satisfying two hours, and made good television sense because it had never been made into a motion picture, hence was fresh to most viewers.

NBC, unfortunately, picked the first hour of the drama as the time in which to show an off-beat and amusing special, "The Fabulous Funnies." With Carl Reiner as guide, viewers were able to sample comic strips that ranged from the old, such as "The Captain and the Kids" to the new, such as "B.C." and "Peanuts."

It was a gay potpourri of animation, interviews with cartoonists, trick photography and songs.

ABC continued its excellent coverage of the Winter Olympics over the weekend. And while the skiing was thrilling and breathtaking, the most exciting moments came Saturday afternoon when American Peggy Fleming gracefully looped and spun her way to a Gold Medal in the skating competition.

Oswald: "Victor Mollo has included Bob Slavenburg of Rotterdam among his bridge immortals. As I remember, you and Dr. John Fisher were second to him and Kreyns in the 1966 World's Pair championship."

Jim: "We came mighty close and lost to a great pair. Bob surely belongs in any list of really great bridge players. Furthermore he is a delightful person."

Oswald: "Victor Mollo shows a rather silly hand as an example."

ample of Bob's daring in a team match in the 1948 European championships which marked his first international appearance. Slavenburg's spade overcall was the sort of psychic I used to try when I was young. Sometimes they worked. Sometimes they carried me down to defeat. At least they created plenty of excitement."

Jim: "When North went back from two clubs to two spades, Bob realized that he was in real trouble. His partner was stubborn enough to go back to spades again and again. Bob decided to pass and hope for the best."

Oswald: "Actually he could not really be hurt at two spades. Down eight, nonvulnerable, would be only 1,500 points, and East and West have a vulnerable grand slam at their disposal. At the other table Bob's partners stopped at six spades but made seven for a score 1,450, so that all he could have lost was 40 points."

Jim: "The results was far different. West opened the ace-king and queen of trumps. Then, for some reason best known to himself, West led a fourth trump. Bob won with dummy's eight spot and ran off seven club tricks to bring home his doubled two spade contract."

Oswald: "Quite a difference. The Slavenburg team played at spades in both directions and made a total of 23 tricks." (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

$45,000 Briggs Loss; Hurley Fire Probed

By WALTER S. CLARK JR. A two-alarm fire completely burned out the J. Ellis Briggs Rental establishment on Route 9W near Boice's Lane, Town of Ulster Saturday night, causing a loss estimated at $45,000.

Another fire, which is under investigation by Kingston State Police destroyed a garage-barn complex on Dug Hill Road, West Hurley, Sunday night.

Spring Lake Fire units were dispatched to the trailer home owned by the Houck family at Spring Lake. It was reported the fire erupted in insulation while attempts were being made to thaw frozen water pipes.

Fire units remained at the scene until shortly before 2 a.m. and later Sunday morning firemen returned when smoldering rubble rekindled. Volunteers worked for sometime wetting down the hot debris.

Chief Williams commended the quick action and alertness of the firemen in bringing the blaze under control and for saving nearby business establishments.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a garage-barn complex on the Emig property on Dug Hill Road, West Hurley, Sunday night despite the combined efforts of fire unit from West Hurley and Hurley fire departments.

West Hurley Fire Chief Daniel Fochi said State Police were called in to investigate after it was discovered telephone wire had been cut outside the Emig home and a call for firemen was delayed several minutes.

The fire was discovered before 10:30 p.m. and when firemen arrived they found the building completely engulfed in flames. Thirty-five volunteer firefighters were at the scene with three pumps and a tank truck from the West Hurley Fire Department and a pumper and tank from Hurley.

According to Chief Fochi an automobile in the garage in the lower part of the frame building was lost in the blaze. He said the barn-garage burned to the ground. Kingston State Police BCI officers are investigating the origin of the fire and will endeavor to determine who cut the telephone wire which delayed a call for firemen, Fochi said.

Fire units reported back in service at 12:55 a.m. today.

Byrd Joins Lincoln Praisers

By SID HURLBURT WASHINGTON (AP) — At least one Southern Democrat in the Senate will join Republicans today in honoring the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln, GOP patron saint and Civil War president.

Amid preparations for "Lincoln Day" observances around the nation, traditional occasion for speech-making and campaign fund-raising efforts by Republican politicians, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., D-Va., said of Lincoln: "He was one of our great presidents."

Byrd said Northerners shouldn't be surprised that a Southerner such as himself thinks highly of Lincoln, born 159 years ago.

He noted Lincoln's declaration of "malice toward none and charity toward all."

"Had he lived," said the senator in an interview, "the plight of the South would have been much less severe."

Visitors to his Senate office find a portrait of Lincoln in a prominent position on Byrd's desk, emblazoned on the front of his leather-covered appointment book.

"I'm a great admirer of Lincoln," he said. "When I see one like this in a stationery store, I buy it."

One of Byrd's hobbies is history, and much of his reading has been concerned with Lincoln and his time, the senator said.

"What was perhaps our most tragic era—because of this war which was a fight with in the family, so to speak—reduced two of the greatest leaders we have had: Lincoln and Robert E. Lee."

Byrd, a newspaper publisher and former editor, said he admires Lincoln not only as a strong and compassionate leader but also as a literary figure.

"His ability to write with such conciseness impressed me greatly," he said. "So many of his remarks had such common sense to them."

Byrd, whose family has roots deep in Virginia history, said he finds no embarrassment in being an admirer of the Civil War president.

Richmond was the capital of the Confederacy, much of the state was ravaged by the war and the final surrender of Southern forces was at Appomattox Court House, Va.

But, Byrd noted, Lincoln also had roots in Virginia. His father was from the Shenandoah Valley, not far from Byrd's home.

RENTAL SHOP GUTTED — Flames completely destroyed the J. Ellis Briggs Rental Shop (above) on Route 9W near Boice's Lane Saturday night. (Freeman photo by Haines).

$45,000 Briggs Loss; Hurley Fire Probed

By WALTER S. CLARK JR. A two-alarm fire completely burned out the J. Ellis Briggs Rental establishment on Route 9W near Boice's Lane, Town of Ulster Saturday night, causing a loss estimated at $45,000.

Another fire, which is under investigation by Kingston State Police destroyed a garage-barn complex on Dug Hill Road, West Hurley, Sunday night.

Spring Lake Fire units were dispatched to the trailer home owned by the Houck family at Spring Lake. It was reported the fire erupted in insulation while attempts were being made to thaw frozen water pipes.

Report Wire Cut

According to authorities the New York Telephone Co. also was investigating a report from fire officials that someone had cut a telephone wire at the West Hurley home, causing a delay of several minutes in summoning firemen to the scene.

Ulster Hose Company was dispatched to the Briggs rental shop shortly before 10:50 p.m. Saturday and on arrival firemen found the building completely involved in flames. Fire Chief William Williams, who with Assistant Chief Charles Crespiro directed firemen at the blaze, ordered a second alarm immediately after arriving at the burning building.

Through mutual aid fire units from Glasco and Mt. Marion-Ruby were sent to assist Ulster Hose Co. firefighters, who responded with five trucks, the 55-foot aerial ladder truck and an emergency vehicle. The flames spread rapidly through the building which was situated near several other business establishments.

Drums Pose Threat

During the height of the blaze which burned out of control for some time, firemen were hampered by the threat of gasoline drums exploding in the

Byrd Joins Lincoln Praisers

By SID HURLBURT WASHINGTON (AP) — At least one Southern Democrat in the Senate will join Republicans today in honoring the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln, GOP patron saint and Civil War president.

Amid preparations for "Lincoln Day" observances around the nation, traditional occasion for speech-making and campaign fund-raising efforts by Republican politicians, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., D-Va., said of Lincoln: "He was one of our great presidents."

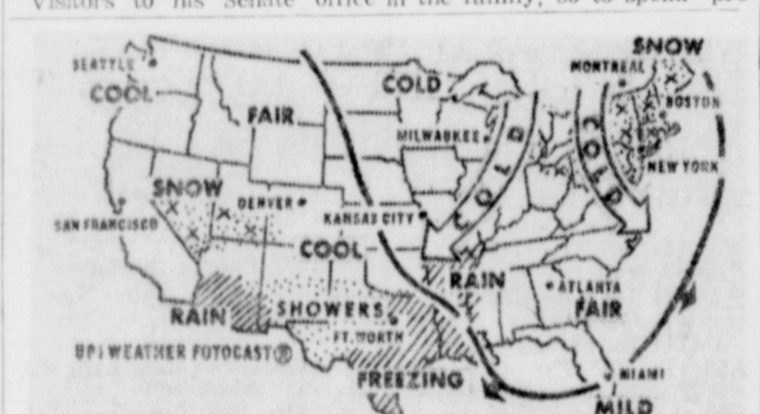

Byrd said Northerners shouldn't be surprised that a Southerner such as himself thinks highly of Lincoln, born 159 years ago.

He noted Lincoln's declaration of "malice toward none and charity toward all."

Byrd said Northerners shouldn't be surprised that a Southerner such as himself thinks highly of Lincoln, born 159 years ago.

One of Byrd's hobbies is history, and much of his reading has been concerned with Lincoln and his time, the senator said.

"What was perhaps our most tragic era—tragic because of this war which was a fight with in the family, so to speak—pro-
